(Recently in a series of talks on CBS-TV with Arthur to him. Because the only thing he gets out of life that way is the habit of receiving. You've denied him the joy Godfrey, comedian Sam Levenson spoke frankly of adult problems with teenagers. Here are highlights of the former teacher's remarks.)

What to do about it? The parents have got to have the guts to be parents. It takes a little courage to face up to a kid when you know he is wrong. Our own parents had rules and regulations for us. I don't say they were always right. But there were rules, simple rules, and we knew what they were and most of the time we followed them or else.

You either went to school and did a good job or you went to work. If you went to college you waited to get married at least till you were out. If you wanted a car or a raccoon coat or whatever-I'm not talking about rich kids, but average kids of average families-you worked to get the money for it. Some-times you could make sometimes you

L.a.C. Says: Only 87 Days Away

It is only 87 days until the Berlin crisis is to occur. That will be the end of the six-month period given the western powers to get out of Berlin. Unless either the Russians or ourselves compromise there will be war. As of this date there appears to be no compromise in sight. But there must be one if a shooting war is to be avoided.

The Communists smugly say all they want is that the western powers pull their forces out of Berlin and allow the East Germans to take charge of this island in the East German section the Communists have controlled ever since the Potsdam Conference. They have refused to call free elections so the German people could choose the kind of government they wish. We have stood fast on the principle that the people must have this right.

* There is no way for the western powers to compromise without completely breaking down on this paramount principle. If the ruthlessness of the Russians is to he rewarded by such a victory there will be no end to the apread of their power throughout Europe and Asia. We have in no way changed our attitude since the Potsdam agreement; which assured the four-nation occupation of Berlin and Germany pending free elections by the people. Under that agreement the other nations were assured of access to Berlin through the Russian occupied areas now known as East Germany. The Communists now threaten to again blockade this access by the Western powers.

West Berlin with its thriving economy, its brilliantly lighted streets and attractive stores is a threat to the Communists. It is too great a contrast with the Communist controlled section of drabness and low living standards of its people. Unless this contrast is eliminated the Communists see a growing problem in keeping their people satisfied with the police state and under Communist domination.

There is widespread belief that the Russians will again back down from this adamant attitude. But no one outside the Kremlin can be sure of what attitude they will take. It is the greatest war threat the world has faced since the 1950 move across the line separating North and South Korea. We were lulled into belief they would not do this so we pulled out our forces in South Korea. It was only the heroic fight by General MacArthur and his forces moving quickly from Japan that saved complete occupation of all of Korea.

We were equally apathetic at Pearl Harbor only to have our fleet destroyed and our nation plunged into allout war. The Berlin crisis is just such another crisis, But it is more precise because, in effect, the Russians served a six-month ultimatum-get out of Berlin or you will have to fight. We have accepted the challenge by saying we will fight to maintain the forces in Berlin which were agreed upon at end of World War II.

This writer does not believe the Russian leaders will chance a war. But we recall the shock of the nation when Japan attacked us at Pearl Harbor at the exact time her representatives were calling on our Secretary of State. This nation should be prepared for an equally dishonorable attitude by the Russians. In many ways the Russians are desperate. The contrasts between recovery of the Western powers and those in eastern Europe are a constant threat to them.

The next 87 days will present constantly increased tensions. There is an ultimatum that calls for one side or the other to back down. We cannot back down and maintain our own self respect or that of our friends among the free nations. If the Russians do not back down there will be shooting which could result in all-out war. It will be a trying and decisive 87 days ahead .-- L.A.C.

DETROIT (A) - An all aluminum truck that can float and be parachuted from the air is being built by Chrysler Corp. for the U. S.

Chrysler said the vehicle will be demonstrated April 1 at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The new truck is one of three prototype vehicles being developed by Chrysler for the Army. All will use identical components for 4-wheel, 6-wheel and 8-wheel drive units. Chrysler describes the vehicle as about 21/2 feet shorter than comparable Army trucks and weighing about 5,000 pounds less.

Unitized construction integrates body and chassis. The hull-type construction protects engine, transmission, brakes, drive lines and axles against dirt, mud and water.

Chrysler reports the vehicle can carry two thirds of its bwn weight on cross-country operations as against onethird to one-half in the case of vehicles currently used.

'Brain' Aids Landings on Carriers

BUFFALO, N.Y. (A)-Scien tists have developed an electronic brain that would en able airplanes to make quicker and safer landings on an aircraft carrier in almost any weather.

The Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory said Saturday that the experimental system, called "wave-off and transition control unit," controls air traffic from a few miles around the carrier to the point where an automatic landing system takes over. It is built around a radar set and computer. The laboratory is currently flight testing the system, which it de-veloped under a Navy contract.

The new system would permit landing at shorter inter-vals. It also would fit an airplane back into the landing pattern after a missed approach of "wave-off."

HONG KONG (UPI) - Informed sources warned Saturday that the Chinese Communists might launch a new offensive against the Nationalist-held offshore is lands while world attention was concentrating on the West Berlin crisis.

The Soviets have declared their intention to turn over control of the Western Allied lifelines to West Berlin to the Communist East Germans on

The sources said they believed the Chinese Reds would trigger some sort of offensive actions around the offshore islands at about the same time to keep the West "off balance."

They speculated that the operations would involve a massive aerial assault.

It is known that the Com munists have moved 100 IL28 twin-jet bombers to an airfield just south of Shanghai and that a new base has been constructed in Kwantung Province - southernmost on the Red held mainland.

Prayed

FORT YUKON, Alaska (P)—An Alaskan bush pilot, his voice choked with emotion, told today how he found his 16-year-old passenger frozen to death after his plane crashed in the Arctic wilderness.

"I got down on my knees and prayed to God to forgive me if I had done wrong in leaving her," Walter G. Lyon told a U.S. commissioner's inquest

LYON SAID he found the body of Marie Martin beside the dead embers of a campfire he built to keep her warm while he mushed to the wrecked plane the two had left in hopes of reaching safety. The 40-year-old Fairbanks man said he had of-fered to fly Miss Martin to Arctic Village last Tuesday to visit an uncle. En route, he noticed animal tracks on a small lake and landed to investigate. The plane crashed on takeoff. The couple was uninjured but a wing of the plane sheared off.

With only a thermos of coffee and one pair of snowshoes between them, Lyon and the girl decided to hike to the village, 20 miles away. After a few hours in the 40 degrees below zero weather, Lyon decided they were lost and thought it best to return to the plane. Miss Martin was exhausted and was unable to continue.

"I GATHERED a stack of wood and built a fire for her," Lyon said. "I told her to keep it burning and to walk around it to keep her from freezing to death while I went back to get sleeping bags and food.

"When I got back I saw her body lying next to the ashes of the fire. I got down on my knees and prayed God to forgive me if I'd done wrong."

Lyon was rescued later that day by Walter John, a trapper, who came across his snowshoe tracks.

Youth the Greatest Power

GRAHAM TELLS AUSSIES: INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM--A-9

MELBOURNE (PI-Evangelist Billy Graham told thousands of teenagers Saturday night that youth is the greatest power in the world. "It is loaded with potential good or bad," he said.

Graham turned to more coventional talk at the open-air Music Bowl after greeting the youngsters with "bop" talk as they filed in.

"Crazy, man, crazy Dad, you really blasted me this morning — You were cool, Dad, cool I mean cool," he said.

But most of Melbourne's boodgies and widgies" -Australia's young toughs and their girls--were not there. They were at the new Elvis Presley movie, "King Creole."

Graham told 45,000 persons, mostly teenagers, who packed the bowl, that the youth of the world was searching for belief.

He won 2,000 "decisions for Christ" at the meeting. The total is 12,000 since he opened his campaign

youth meeting.

Nearly 200 buses brought hundreds of teenagers from country areas for Graham's

Plans for the study were drafted at a conference sponsored by the National Cancer Institute and attended by representatives from the U.S., England, Denmark, Finland, Norway and France.

Participants are chiefly interested in learning whether there is a significant difference between survival rates in Europe, where X-ray treatment is stressed, and in this country, where surgery has been emphasized.

Also to be studied is the effectiveness of drug treatment, including the use of hormones.

Dr. Herman K. Hellerstein, Western Reserve University School of Medicine, makes these observations: a proper amount of work is necessary exercise, a job may relieve social anxieties, the worker may expend more energy at home than at his job.

He said some workers even have returned to jobs at steel mills without adverse results.

Causative factors include overprotectiveness and overindulgence by parents, parental preference for another child, maternal rejection, the child's fear of separation from the mother.

If the basic anxiety is the latter, the mother must encourage the youngster to become more independent, says the journal. Parents should be firm, create the proper home environment.

SHOE LEATHER can cause skin eruptions on the feet, doctors have known for a long time. Now they know exactly why: chromium salt used to tan leather percolates out of the leather when the feet perspire and is deposited on the skin, sometimes causing dermatitis. Proof of this is offered by Dr. George E. Morris, who reported in the Archives of Dermatology that patch tests with chrome salt turned out positive.

Suggested treatment: stop wearing tan leather shoes and pink shoe laces.

A TORONTO SURGEON says some cancer patients have benefited from treatment with serum from horses inoculated with human cancer.

Dr. Gordon Murray said the treatment resulted in complete absence of pain in almost every case. Life was prolonged for many of the patients.

Malignant tumor cells, taken from patients in the operating room, were injected into horses.

"The horses did not develop cancer but absorbed it," the doctor said. "Their tissues developed the substances required for dissolving the tumor cells."

WHAT PUTS the bliss into a kiss?

Three things, according to a report of a recent Mayo Clinic staff meeting:

1. A thin layer of skin on the lips. Little fat beneath this outer layer.

3. A denser network of nerve endings in the lip area. Dr. R. K. Winkelmann, of Mayo's dermatology section, sums it up: "This anatomy favors acute perception."

Pleasurable sensations on ordinary skin areas, the Mayo doctor says, are merely "an exaggerated form of tickle." Doctors call these skin surfaces "non-specific."

Lips, however-because they are mucous membrane-And that's why the specific is terrific.

. This policy was at slight variance with that of Orange County Supervisor Willis Warner at the previous conference. Evidently with an eye to saving county money, Bro. Warner served notice beforehand that the luncheon would be "dutch." This led to a close scrutiny of the lower-priced items on the menu, and one or two impecunious individuals actually planned to borrow money to pay for their lunch.

As soon as orders were placed, Supervisor Warner relented and announced that Orange County would pay the bill. A substantial tax saving was no doubt effected by this piece of strategy.

AT LAST, it has happened. For a long time I've been watching the subdivision signs along Southland highways, noting that it was becoming less and less financially painful to buy a house. Now, the pain is evidently gone entirely.

The answer, by the way, didn't satisfy Mr. Kirby. He thinks the condition of the red cars calls for action.

He has been a dedicated man-and para- was upheld by the State Superintendent and the State Board of Education. We note that Dr. Peterson was never given adequate opportunity by his critics to carry out the plans, prescribed by state education officials, for better faculty-administration relations. Without waiting for the results of such a program, these critics continued their campaign against him. This meant that the school faced the probability of continued disruption, hostility, and feuding. Meanwhile, the young men and women enrolled at State College for the purpose of getting an education were the ones who suffered.

Presumably this controversy will subside upon Dr. Peterson's departure and the faculty will turn its attention back to the main purpose, teaching. It is up to the faculty firebrands to show that they are interested in the welfare of the college and that they are not mere chronic malcontents.

A few zealous faculty members made the attack upon Dr. Peterson their relentless vendetta. There were just enough sound points raised, however, to draw moderate persons into the campaign. Now, we are sure, the latter persons will disassociate themselves from any who intend to make discord their permanent theme.

AS TO THE QUESTION OF a successor to Dr. Peterson, obviously the new President should be a man from outside the college and one who has had no connection with it. He should start with a "clean slate" as far as Long Beach State College is concerned. He should be a man of proven administrative ability and academic standing.

Long Beach State has just gone through its growing pains. Dr. Peterson piloted it through this phase, and he proved to be an effective pilot. Having done the job he set out to do and which needed to be done, he steps out, leaving a good physical foundation on which the college can grow to academic maturity.

The magnificent physical plant that now exists remains a monument to his splendid effort.

For the first time in 40 years, the supreme court dealt specifically with those Treasury regulations which deny corporations or individuals the right to deduct from their gross income for tax purposes any expenses in promoting the passage or defeat of legislation, federal, state, or city. WASHINGTON. - The Suing is an affirmation of the of the United States is concerned."

But what is a "nondiscriminatory denial of deduction?" This means that every individual and every organization of individuals must be treated alike.

If individuals and corporations cannot get deductions for expenses they deem necessary to their survival, can the Treasury any longer permit labor unions to engage in political activities and a total tax exemption? The Supreme Court seems to imply that there can be no discrimination and that "everyone in the community should stand on the same footing" in purchasing propaganda.

Many millions of dollars were spent by labor-union members through specially created organizations last autumn in the fight against

"right to work" laws in several states. Was this activity of a nature that would require labor unions to pay taxes on their total income and to lose their tax exemption? Corporations are forbidden by law to contribute to such "educational" campaigns, so evidently they have not been standing 'on the same footing."

Also,

foundations have lately been spending vast sums for television programs described as "educational" but which present views on controversial questions involving legislative policy. The foundations have a right to do this, but do they have a right to retain their tax exemptions if individuals who try to do the same thing are penalized? That's the issue raised anew by the Supreme Court's latest

Says Pine Ave. Should Be Bazaar EDITOR:

Make Pine Ave. a bazaar. For 15 years I have advocated that all vehicular traffic-autos or bussesbe so routed as to free Pine Ave. of open street hazards. By so doing the downtown area would be in competition on a winning basis with the so-called free parking offered by suburban stores. With no cars on Pine, people could cross the street anywhere and any time. The autos would drop passengers on the east-west streets and on Locust and Pacific. Overhead crosswalks could be installed at Broadway, 3rd, 4th, 5th.

EVERYONE now accepts Pine as one way and can see the big advantage of no parking on its west side. Also most thinking people realize more and more that the downtown shopping area is the real core of business in any large city.

Then he stated that of all the people convicted of capital crimes, less than 10 are executed each year. He "It is obvious that only the habitual and incorrigible criminal . . . need ever fear receiving the death penalty."

THIS statement does not match the facts. The "selected" few who are picked for execution are mostly poor, non-white males. A correct statement would read "it is obvious that if you are wealthy, white and a woman, you need not fear the death penalty." It is a discriminatory law.

EDITOR:

Why do we fight communism with one hand and condone it with the other? We don't like their collectives; we have co-operatives. We don't like state ownership of industry; we have public power. don't want government in business; our government is in several hundred ways competing with private industry, and it is tax free, We hold that a man is a free agent to engage in business, but klll his incentive for growth and expansion with a graduated in-come tax. We don't want monopoly; labor unions, it seems, have a license to run wild with it.

THE AMERICAN way is for each man to stand on his own legs, yet he has a hard time determining if he is earning too much or too little. The American worker is told and is taxed to fashion a crutch for himself to use at age 65; but if he earns too much after receiving it, he must return it in part. In other words, to sum it all up on our own social calendar, the farmer is paid for not doing things and the city worker pays a penalty for doing too much. How about that?

If we don't want the American eagle to scream to high heaven, it behooves us to start working at our kind of economy; and soon. ALFRED E. BRIGHTON.

Congress Not What Freshmen Pictured

WASHINGTON-When California voters sent four freshman Democrats to Washington to join 59 others in the new Congress, there were widespread predictions the new blood would produce startling changes. That these have not developed has led many of the freshmen to take a new look at themselve workings of the House of Representatives. One of these is Rep. George Kasem (D-Calif.), who was elected from the 25th Congressional District once served by Vice Presi-

AT THE END OF HIS FIRST two months in office, Kasem took a backward look at a freshman's problems and observed "this Congress has not been as creative as I expected." Like most California congressmen, new and old of both parties, the thoughful, scholarly West Covina attorney shies away from "liberal or conservative" labels. He regards himself as a middle-of-the-roader, inclined toward "creative" or "progressive" legislation responsive to the needs of the nation as a whole.

Last November's Democratic sweep, Kasem said, was in fact "a mandate for progressive legislation."

"Yet we freshmen find we cannot get properly organized to obtain a position that would make our views effective because of the congressional seniority system," he said. "The unfortunate result is that we get a Congress not as responsive to the people's will as it should * *

DOES THIS MEAN a freshman revolt against the more conservative leadership and the seniority system?

"Not at all," said Kasem, "but the freshmen want it known that they are not submissive. If a creative program is not forthcoming, we intend to assume as much of the leadership as our numbers and skill will permit." He emphasized that he spoke only for himself, but he said that opinion is shared by other freshmen Democrats, and, he suspects, Republicans, too.

"I never realized the tremendous grip the congressional committee and seniority systems have on the government," he continued. "It places the power of Congress in the hands of a very few who are not representative of the makeup of Congress as a whole."

While noting defects, Kasem also is aware that "we freshmen and our predecessors have not been able to devise a better system."

Is City Manager a Czar?

COUNCILMAN Charles M. Garrison disagrees with a League of Women Voters' contention here Feb. 8 that under the present City Charter "the City Manager has little power to man-Garrison, who wantseto junk the Council-Manager form, says the charter gives the Manager "tremendous power. In fact, he has been characterized by some as a czar under the present powers delegated him." The Coun-

numerous articles and sections of the charter as proof that the Manager has vast powers. But Mr. Garrison closes his 1100-word rebuttal to the LWV and to my own partiality for the council-manager form, with these words:

"The present set-up leaves your elected representatives, i.e., members of the City Council, with the desire to do a good job, but because authority now divided and diffused in elected officials, autónomous commissions and the Manager, efficiency and speedy actions are sacrificed in solving our many and complex problems." NOW IT'S clear that Mr.

Garrison admits division and diffusion. But he prefers his solution. His solution for "an up-to-date, efficient government" is to "change the City Charter to provide for a full-time, well-remunerated City Council and clothe the Mayor with veto power over all actions of city departments and commissions. . . . '

To my claim that a technical expert such as a city manager is to be preferred over a more powerful mayor because a popular vote getter is seldom the technical expert required for the best administration, Mr. Garrison counters that:

Long Beach voters have ability to choose qualified and capable mayor wise enough to surround himself with competent technical experts.

Mr. Garrison's arguments are careful ones. They reflect scrutiny of the present 200-page charter. And we must express gratitude for his corrections of errors of detail in the Feb. 8 column including an important one that the City Manager can not be fired at will by the Council without opportunity for public hearing.

IT SEEMS the main conflict is council-manager form versus mayor-council form of city government.

The Garrison-proposed strong mayor form, complemented with a well paid and full-time City Council could work. It could work well.

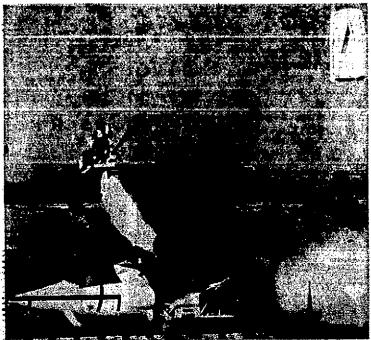

LWV, which also has apt scholars, maintains that genuine council-manager plans are noted for their efficiency that, in fact, fewer than 4 per cent of U.S. cities which have adopted this plan have abandoned it, and then only in the early years of its trial. And 85 per cent of California cities over 50,-000 population now use this plan.

MR. GARRISON fee'ls that the LWV position is one which advocates "complete and unbridled authority" for the City Manager and "immunizes him against the collective will of the voters."

Retorts LWV: "He is hired by the Council who hold their office by virtue of the collective will of the people, and he can be discharged by the Council for cause. An administrative expert hired by the mayor, the League claims, would be merely an agent of the mayor, doing the mayor's bidding. Mayors come and go without assuring the continuity of service of an independent manager

A band of lazz greats will shake the rafters of a Washington hotel ballroom on the night of March 16. What Mrs. Bolling calls "an uptown level" will be supplied by the Library of Congress and the National Gallery of Art.

As boss of the AEC, Mc-Cone runs an agency that has offices and laboratories scattered from Brooklyn to Japan. It budgets two billion dollars a year, maintains facilities worth seven billion, and employs 105,000. It builds hombs, prospects for uranium, probes the secrets of cancer, builds power plants, operates cyclotrons, studies mice and men, and conducts research literally from the depths of the earth to the far reaches of space.

"THE PROBLEMS have been perplexing and difficult," says McCone, "but they haven't caused my knees to shake." He came to the AEC from a distinguished career that included liberal doses of business, industry and government.

 Public criticism of the AEC in the past has been partly justified, says McCone. "There has been criticism be-cause actions by the AEC have taken too long. Some of this has been due to uncertainties as to policy objectives and some due to uncertainties about the relative responsibilities of the commission and of the joint Senate-House Atomic Committee.

"Some of the delay has heen due to the fact that development had to await basic scientific advances that has not been clearly understood by the public.'

The ordinarily quiet-spoken McCone adds with vigor: "But there's one thing on which there has been no criticism-and that's the nuclear weapons field.

"As a nation we've wrung nur hanus over lack of planes, lack of missiles and even, in the case of the Korean War, lack of conventional ammunition. But never has there been a time when we were worried about a lack of nu clear weapons capability."

Dodgers Taste Torture Machine VERO BEACH, Fla. — The Dodgers unveiled a homemade torture machine Saturday afternoon and it proved such a success that the inventor was forced to seek refuge somewhere in the Florida Keys.

The torture machine is a device that simulates a fungo by automatically hurling fly balls into the air. The baseballs rocket from the machine every six seconds, so each player being schooled in flychasing methods must be "Whoever invented that thing should be shot," gasped

He then lit out for the Florida Keys.

DON ZIMMER

ZIMMER WAS THE FASTEST infielder going after fly balls, while first baseman Jim Gentile was the slowest. Even huge Steve Bilko and towering Frank Howard were swiften than Gentile.

"Gentile doesn't know how to move his head up and look for a fly without reducing his speed, so consequently he doesn't get to the ball in time," remarked Charley Dressen who was directing the session.

"That little Zimmer is like Rocky Bridges going after fly balls. He sets sail the instant he knows the ball is gonna he in the air and gets a good jump on the ball. Bridges did this real good, too, when I had him at Washington.

Bridges and Zimmer should have been brothers. They do everything alike.

The Los Angeles Rams Saturday acquired fullback Ollie Matson in one of the National Football League's most startling trades.

To complete the transaction, the Rams will send eight players to the Chicago Cardinals and also will give up a high draft choice in the next draft meeting.

Ram veterans included in the trade are defensive tackles Art Hauser and Frank Fuller, offensive tackle Ken Panfil and defensive end Glen Holtzman. Additionally, Baylor fullback Larry Hickman, Houston halfback Don Brown and Texas A&M end John Tracy-all selected by the Rams in the recent draft-will go to the Cards. An eighth player will be delivered during the 1959 training camp season.

It was the "heaviest" transaction completed in the NFL since the Rams sent 11 players to now defunct Dallas, Texas in 1952 to acquire linebacker Les Richter.

Matson, 28 and a former University of San Francisco all-America, has been one of the most brilliant runners in the NFL during his six seasons with Chicago.

He holds several Cardinal records-most yards gained one season (924) and most gained one game (163), and is though he's played three less seasons than Trippi.

During his career with the Cards, Matson scored an even 300 points, 60 of them in 1958 on 10 touchdowns

"While we are delighted to obtain Matson," Ram general manager Pete Rozelle said, "we are also sorry to lose players who have contributed as substantially to the Ram organization as have Panfil, Fuller, Holtzman and Houser.

"However, it is axiomatic in trading that it is necessary to give up talent to gain talent. And on paper this appears to be a trade that will materially help both teams."

President Dan Recves, plus co-owners Ed Pauley. Fred Levy and Hal Seley, termed the negotiation, "one the most significant in Ram history. Coach Sid Gillman hailed the trade as one certain to make the Ram offense-one of the most effective in the league—even more explosive.

"Despite the fact that he weighs upwards of 210 pounds," Gillman said, "Ollie has sprinter's speed. He is tremendously effective to the inside as well as on sweeps and can be effectively used as a pass receiver. We were somewhat handicapped last year in operating with only one fullback, but Masson and Joe Marconi should give us the finest pair in the league at this spot.

"Matson also is extremely dangerous as a kickoff and punt return man and undoubtedly we will employ him a great deal in this capacity."

The record book bolsters Gillman's confidence in Matson's receiving and kick returning power. He led the league in kickoff returns last year, returning two for touchdowns, and ranked ahead of all NFL fullbacks in receiving, catching a total of 33 for 465 yards and three

Sullivan's Cemetery Bout Recalled

The "search" by promoter Bill Rosensohn for a site to stage the Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight brings to mind that the wildest fight ever engaged in by the immortal John L. Sullivan was held in a cemetery.

Sporting annals list the great John L.'s most epic bour as a 75-rounder with Jake Kilrain, but an "unofficial" mate in a Mt. Clemens, Michigan, cemetery certainly provided spectators with more thrills and more action.

DOTS FROM DODGERTOWN:

Clem Labine's new nickname is "Feller" because he runs on his own in the morning, just as Bob Feller did in his heyday with Cleveland. Both are demons on condition-. Labine not only is the hardest working pitcher, but also the clothes horse of the camp. His flare for the flamboyant reminds one of golfer Jimmy Demaret.

"Where are they going to play him?" Hirsch asked.
"At fullback, where else?" I told him. "Don't you think the Rams could use a fullback like Matson?"

As we turn the calendar today, we find that spring is only three weeks away, and there are indications that we may have one of the best fishing years in history. Already, the ocean has produced fish in numbers never before experienced for the winter season.

Some strange things are occurring even now. Santa Monica Bay is far ahead of schedule in barracuda and those baby yellowtail are keeping everybody in a dither. It's bad that so many three- and four-pounders are being caught; there should be a chance for them to grow to what most of us consider yellowtail size. Red crabs, or tiny shrimp-like crustaceans, are appearing at the Horseshoe Kelp and that means good fish-

Whitey Ashley, who took over operation of the Fisherman II at Pacific Landing when Steve Peters retired last year, is setting a fast pace, with some of the winter's most remarkable catches.

For instance, he found dirty water off Rocky Point Wednesday, pulled anchor and sailed far offshore to try for rockfish. Then his passengers got a surprise. They started catching white sea bass, 20 to 40 pounds, in 165 feet of water. It was so deep that lungs of the fish were distended on being brought to the surface, just as those of rockfish do. Thirty-four whites were boated and many others lost because of light mono lines.

SAN DIEGO HAS SET the date for its 13th annual yellowtail derby periods as follows: First period, March 28-May 17, with a fishoff May 22; second, May 18-July 19, fishoff July 24, and third, July 20-Sept. 13, fishing Sept. 19.

The 150 anglers taking the heaviest yellowtail in a period will be eligible for the fishoff, but the derby will be worked on a percentage basis this year. Yellows, albacore and tuna will be eligible. If 20,000 yellows are taken in a single period, along with 10,000 albacore and tuna, 100 anglers of the 150 will qualify with yellowtail entries.

This system will give all anglers chances to fish for either species, with equal chances of qualifying. A station wagon tops the list of valuable prizes. The derby, as always, is being sponsored by the San Diego Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Ocean Fish Protective Association is having the first round of its fishing derbies today at Mission Bay, utilizing four of the five boats there. Other rounds of this derby, arranged to help the OFPA raise money, will be held later at San Diego, Newport, Long Beach and San Pedro. Clyde Robinson, OFPA secretary, is handling arrangements through FRontier 2-0137 (Hermosa Beach).

LOOK FOR HIGHER PRICES on fishing boats this year. Pacific and Pierpoint Landings—and we presume others will do the same—are boosting all fares 50 cents to $1 because of increased operational costs, namely fuel and Here's the new schedule: $7.50 all-day local; $8.50 Catalina Island; $10 San Clemente Island; $5 for half-day local (morning run), or $4 for afternoon.

Answering several inquiries: Salmon are not running at Morro Bay in appreciable numbers. A few singles have been taken. However, boats at Monterey and Santa Cruz are starting to pick up fair schools.

Ross Bryce, Long Beach, with a 20-8 halibut; Mike Williams, Long Beach (20-8 halibut), and C. L. Macy, Long Beach (6-10 kelp bass) are latest winners of awards in the winter derby of the Schenley Sportsmen's Club. P. E. "Susan and the Milkman," delightful text used to acquaint elementary age students with the dairy industry, soon will have a fresh, new audience.

Through efforts of North Long Beach Junior Wom-en's Club, five copies of the book, complete with braille text and three-dimensional illustrations, are being compiled for use by blind youngsters. They will be available on completion at Long Beach Public Library.

SPECIAL permission has been received by NLB Juniors from Emily De-Vore, author, and California Dairy Industry Advis-ory Board, publishers of the original story, for its reproduction in braille. Permission also has been granted by the artist, Alicia Woods, for the club to adapt sketches from her suitable for blind youth.

Mrs. Charles Parks who instructs classes in braille text, volunteered services of her students to do the written pages.

Five individual committees, appointed by Mrs. James Frank, president, and headed by Mmes. Fred Harris, Jimmy Cofer, Kenneth Newton, Grover Seguine Jr. and Jack Ferrer, now are collecting bits of felt, leather, yarn, cord, wire, wood and cotton for use in illustrations. Every detail in the raised pictures-complete to unborn calf skin for the eight-inch cow — is made of authentic material. Each committee will be responsible for one completed book with four illustrations.

WITH ALL working materials at hand, members make the illustrations more realistic to the feel of their blind readers through bits of material appliqued on a free piece of cloth and stuffed with cotton for a raised effect.

Many authentic features are observed such as leaving the skirt and collar of Wooden legs are cemented

The Wild Waves Say

THERE ARE so many ways to say thank you that there's no excuse whatsoever for a person not to say it. For instance, you can ask the butcher to tell Mabel and Moe, next time they come in, that you sure want Them to know you appreciated their dinner party. See how easy it is?

Some people of course tike it a little more serirously. If they can't re-member their benefactor's

MEET THE Junior Carriage Club. Don't mutter "whatzal?" until we get a chance to roll with the explanation. It's a mother-daughter group just recently organized with membership limited to a busload. The idea is to charter a bus about once a month and just go places-interesting and fun places. Ellie Persons and Barbara Davis spearheaded the club with such early starters as Baba Graham, Georgia Combs, Julia Helms and Marialice Johnson. Others with daughters in 7th or 8th grades who have filled up the roster are Flossie Rene, Marge Neibling, Rita Gray, Betty Bennett, Laurette Peterson, Caroline Wooding, Jean Kinley, Ina Harris, Julia Cheney, Virginia Cords, Ginger McCallum, Mary Knutson, Ginny Welch, Leila Davidson and Dorothy Mullarky. First jaunt was to Padua Hills yesterday for luncheon and the show.

YOU CAN ask Florence and Dr. Orville Cole if it's true what they're saying about Mexico City. Ask 'em, "Has the weather REALLY been a baliny 73 degrees, like they're saying?" Norma feels so lucky that the mishap, which could easily have been fatal, wasn't, that the last thing she's worried about at the moment is how a dress will fit! Here's the marvel of modern medicine. She'll be up and walking, cast and all, probably within this coming week. Able to drive a car, go to meetin', too? Yes!

No visitors, to date, we understand. Haven't meant to ignore husband, John, who was also involved in the accident, but with only one broken vertebrae so he gets second billing. Marvel of medicine again. John has been on a "business as usual" schedule all week, possible because of a trim, firm steel brace which is letting him recuperate "on the hoof."

"AUNTIE MAEMIE" is in town again! And "Uncle" Carl Kresl too. Anyone who knows Jane and Jim Kresl doesn't have to be told we don't mean Rosalind Russell and Co. but Jim's equally charming mother and father who claim Jane as daughter-inlaw. Maemie and Carl arrived in time to celebrate the family February birthdays again as they have annually for the last five years, granddaughter Charlotte's, who was 5 last Thursday, and Jane's, who was we don't know and wouldn't tell if we did, last Friday. # The Three Hour Trip That Took Eleven

The weatherman was a crazy mixed up kid last weekend, pulling high and low pressure areas out of his hat with the speed of a nervous magician. However, all's well that ends that way-and it did on a mountain going trip last weekend for a trio of couples and their children by the name of Marcia and "Ty" Ellis, with Cindy and Jim, Francine and Larry Collins Jr., with Christie and "Chip," and Mimi and Bernie Wishney with David and Peter.

Timing their journey to Big Bear to coincide perfectly with a blizzard wasn't their idea but the fellow's with the low weather pressure problem. As a result the customary three-hour drive took them a full 11 to complete. After struggling to on and managing to drive half way to the top on City Creek Road, highway crews turned everyone back which forced them to detour, via Cajon Pass and Lucerne Valley, up the back road. But, with victory, they won the spoils of a heavenly winter weekend complete with deep, clean snow glistening beneath blue, storm washed skies. Perfect!

Judith Clark Weds James Otto Hillman

With dignity and simplicity, the marriage of Anne Clark to James Otto Hillman was solemnized in Lutheran Church of Our Savior by the Rev. Virgil F. Bjerke. The 55 wedding guests attending the intimate morning double-ring rite were all members of the couple's

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Clark, 3916 Walnut Ave., granddaughter of Mrs. Roy E. Décole and the late Mr. Deeble and of Mrs. I. S. Clark and the late Dr. Clark, was given in marriage by her father. For her chic bridal ensemble she chose a slender white linen sheath dress topped with a holero richly trimmed with inserts of heavy lace. A flowered halo hat of delicate pink completed the bride's attire and for her flowers she carried a cascade bouquet fashioned of pink roses and white butterfly orchids.

MATRON OF honor Mrs. Robert Henry wore a pink linen sheath gown with matching accessories and held a nosegay bouquet of pink carnations and roses. As matron of honor, Mrs. Henry (nee Sharon Stimson) completed the circle of long friendship with the bride having been attended by Judy as maid of honor at her own wedding last September.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Hill-man, 249 Venetia Dr., asked Philip Sheridan to stand with him as best man. Robert Henry ushered the guests to their places.

To complement the pink and white theme of the wedding, the altar was flanked by large, formal all pink arrangements of stock, peach blossoms, roses and carnations.

THE NEW Mrs. Hillman, a native of Long Beach, is a graduate of Polytechnic High and attended Oregon State College through last semester, affiliating with Pi Beta Phi. She now is completing her education at Long Beach State College where she is majoring in medical technology. The bridegroom, a graduate of Wilson High, is attending Long Beach City College as a social science major. He is a member of Sigma Chi Epsilon.

Following the wedding ceremony the newlyweds were feted at a festive breakfast at Virginia Country Club. Greeting wedding guests was the bride's cousin, Miss Nicky Deeble. A brief wedding trip to Santa Barbara, where they stayed Mira Mar, terminated Tuesday for the bride and bridegroom who now are at home at 227 Pomona Ave.

Well, it was a great show and I have a shiny new plaque to hang in my trophy room with all those scalps. About all I can say to Downtown Long Beach Associates is: "Thanks, fellas—but you shouldn't have!" You shouldn't have gone to all that trouble, I mean.

It was very impressive, bringing down that Moulin Rouge chorus line and Vic Damone just for Ol' Tedbut really, it would've meant just as much if you'd slipped me the award quietly.

Recause of this award. I feel I should redouble my efforts to make men (and women) clothes conscious; so here goes.

A fellow stopped in my office the other day and, after making me swear that I wouldn't reveal his lidentity (shades of Marie : Torre!) because of his fear of reprisal, he said the thing that annoyed him ...most was to see a mother and father going out to dinner all dressed up and dragging along a child who that he looks like a chimney sweep.

In recent years there has been a lot of talk about other nations (particularly Britain) outwitting us on the diplomatic front. Why is this true? Because in Britain they start when a child is young to train him

PAIR NOTES 50TH YEAR

Long Beach residents since the turn of the century, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Wille of 3818 Linden Ave., marked their 50th wedding anniversary Monday with a party attended by six of their seven children. They also have 12 grandchildren.

beat anyone on the diplomatic front when we don't even emphasize the essentials of good grooming in our everyday life?

A lot of people laugh at the British for their rather formal mode of dress-but this is just like laughing at Lawrence Welk as he trucks his money to the

WHY DO people do this -why do they dress up themselves and neglect good grooming for the kiddies? There are a variety of reasons. Everyone knows it's tough to keep a kid dressed up and clean-but unless an effort is made, the child never will know better. Therefore, I think two big reasons for this parental behavior are plain discouragement and thoughtlessness. But I feel there are other reasons more sinister. Many times Mama doesn't want to put down her cocktail and king-sized cigarette to give the kid a good scrubbing. Or maybe she's so busy as secretary for the Daughters of Theodosia Burr that she doesn't even have time to prepare hot dinner, let alone shine the kids up occasion-

This is why we have slobs. The only way we'll get rid of them is to start when they're little to show them the way they should wash and dress for school -and later for business.

There's an unfortunate bloc of our populace that thinks it's rather sissified for a man to be dressed up. Well, there's just one thing I wish for these benighted souls. I wish they could tell this to boxer Sugar Ray Robinson. He's one of the best-dressed men I've ever

Don't Listen to This!

Recently my husband's family came to visit us from out of town. I like them, and look forward to their visits-except for one thing. -c - Even though we've been married several years and rare happy together, every time said family arrives, suoner or later the converesation turns to my husband hand the girl he went with c before we were married.

· Pye heard them tell over and over how, when she , visited in his home, Sue and John sure acted like they were married, and should have been if they weren't! And how Sue and John were always necking in public! And how John just keen his hands off little Sue!

All this makes me feel there is a storm ragingwith tears instead of rain.
Am I foolish to think I'm playing the role of Suc? SECOND FIDDLE

DEAR FIDDLE: Those foolish, foolish folk! How easily they could destroy their son's happi-ness, as well as yours.

. But don't let them get away with it. You have every right in the world to speak up and say that you would rather not talk about John's amorous past—any more than he'd care to listen to yours. Be firm and simply say, "I'm sorry, but I must leave the room unless you leave this subject alone. And stalk out!

DEAR MOLLY:

My mother is going to shame my boy friend out and show me up.

She is so busy-minded that she never stays home. Naturally, some of my schoolmates stop by to give me advice or tell about things happening at school, which is all good and nothing dirty at all.

I am 17 but mother can't see this. She doesn't want any boy to come by. She has my little brother trained to follow me about. He said and gets it all back- some day you and he will ward so it doesn't come laugh together about how out the truth.

I have some very nice associates, same age as I am. Their mothers think nothing of them being to-, gether and going on dates. I almost feel like hanging myself.

NOT BAD REALLY DEAR NOT BAD: You're soon to be an adult on your own. No lit-tells her things that are the brothers to bother. And he played detective-really you will!

I think, though, your mother would do better to trust you.

At 17, there's not much time left to establish the respect you should have for each other. It's a relationship that can continue helpfully all through life.

Greco Ballet to Stage 'Three-Cornered Hat'

One of the most famous of all Spanish ballets, De-Falla's colorful "Three-Cornered Hat," associated with the Russian ballet since the days of Diaghiley, has been restaged and brought back into the Spanish camp by Jose Greco, who will feature it spanish be sparkling perbrought back into the

New choreographies and gay new costumes emphasize this season's electrifying presentation, sparked by frenetic flamencos and torrid traditional dances of gay Spain,

THE EXCITING original Bronze Gypsies, Gitanillio Heredia and Maribel de Cirez, are back after a year's absence. An outstanding novelty this season is the appearance of Greco's sensational 9-yearold protege, Michael Davis, "Master Miguel," whose talent has led him to television and film fame, but whose stage appearances with Greco still bring him the most enjoyment.

VOCAL SELECTIONS will be given by soprano Maria Merida, from the Capary Islands, and flamenco singer Manuela de Jerez, aided by guitarists, Ricardo Blasco, Miguel Garcia, Enrique Heredia and pianist Ludia del Mar, under the musical direction of composer-planist Roger E. Machado.

Greco will dance several of his inimitable solos and appear in duos and trios, as well as at the head of his tempestuous troupe. Since forming his own company in Spain in 1948, he has contributed largely to the history and development of Spanish dancing and achieved new heights as a

The name of Nelson Eddy has shone glamourously through the years. It is still glittering in bright lights above the famous night clubs of our country. I met him and talked with him the other night at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles where he is appearing nightly in the Cocoanut Grove.

Nelson Eddy still is a vital, vigorous, handsome man with thick blonde hair and merry blue eyes. His physique is magnificent, belying his quiet, genteel

He was born in Providence, R. I. The family moved to Philadelphia when Nelson was only a lad and at 9 he was singing as boy soprano soloist in one of the leading churches in Philadelphia. Singing always has been the love of his life, but he had to earn a living, too. So he became a reporter on the Philadelphia Ledger.

WORKING and studying, studying and working -that was his life. His first great teacher was the famous basso, David Bispham, also of Philadelphia. Bispham prepared him for recitals which were at once successful. Then he became a member of the Philadelphia Civic Opera Co. under the conductor. Alexander Smallens.

Once when singing a recital in San Diego he was heard by a movie talent scout. This changed the course of his whole career. "I wanted to be a recital singer most of all," said Eddy, "and I realized this ambition." But now two movie companies vied for his services. He signed a contract with one and sat around for two years doing nothing, but drawing his salary. Then he signed with the other company and his film career had really begun. "Naughty Marietta" with Jeannette MacDonald was the first picture he made and it was so successful that it is even now being shown on television.

"Rose Marie," "Girl of the Golden West," "Maytime" and many others. Out of 16 pictures Nelson Eddy made, eight of them were partnered with Jeannette Macsuccess of his film appearances made him a teenage idol. Girls screamed wherever he appeared, and even as we talked the other night phone calls came in from strangers just so they could say they had talked with Nelson Eddy. The recitals were never given up, however; his film popularity crowded the concert halls where he appeared.

During 31 years of singing before the public Nelson Eddy has had but one accompanist, Theodore Paxson. In his six years of night club appearances he has had but one partner, Gale Sherwood, soprano. He even has the same loving wife with whom he started "She tells me what is good and what is bad," he says; 'my real help mate." They have no children and make their home in West Los Angeles whenever time and leisure allow him to relax. Eddy had a word of warning for ambitious young singers. "I never gave up working until my singing paid better than my job.". "Keep at your job untilyour singing career is really established," he advises.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS by PLACER MINER-

Initiations seem the order of the day at Long Beach State as most of this week's activities calendar centers around the sororities.

Zeta Tau Alpha leads off this afternoon as 14 girls become lifetime Zetas. A dinner at La Ronde Rue will fete the new members. ZTA also (1) is pround that Pat Miller recently was elected to Sigma Alpha Epsilon's "Little Sisters of Minerva," (2) is looking forward to an exchange with Tau Kappa Posilon on Friday, and (3) has eight new pledges.

Today, also, Delta Zeta sorority is initiating pledges at the home of Betty Jo Hively.

Monday the Delta Delta Deltas initiate two pledges and install Jackie Zittle as new president. Then on Saturday, the Tri-Delts put on their plush Stars and Crescent Ball at the Irvine Coast Country Club, Still on the sorority front, Delta Chi colony of Delta Gamma will be presented with its national charter in ceremonies Saturday at Pacific Coast Club. President Arlene Crowley will accept the paper which makes the LBSC delegation the 86th member of this national sorority. On Sunday in the Soroptimist House DG alums, parents, and friends will honor the new actives with a reception, and the following evening the new chapter will hold its first formal meeting and install officers.

MOVING OVER to the masculine side of the Greek organizations at State, we find Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity with six new faces in its "Little Sisters of Minerva" club. Initiated last Monday were Pat Jo Miller, Barbara Stee, Barbara Boyer, Linda Jones, Carol Taylor, and Joann Falcone.

Today 20 SAE pledges are putting the finishing touches on a "Help Weekend" in which neighbors of the group in the 600 block on Coronado Ave. in Long Beach benefitted from a varied performance of odd jobs by the fellows who tonight will be taking their national exams and Monday will be initiated into the fraternity.

Friday the entire Sigma Alpha Epsilon population in Long Beach—alums, actives, pledges, and little sisters—gathers at the Lafayette Hotel to celebrate the organization's 153rd birthday. Leo S. Cade, national president, will be honored guest at the dinner and dancing event.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Technique Changing in Child Rearing

By MYRTLE ELDRED

Perhaps the feeling that all that needs to be done for a baby is to feed him well, keep him clean and make him comfortable in his little crib, is a holdover from the days when chil-dren were treated exactly that way.

But there is a changed attitude toward infant care. It has become apparent how important "mothering" is and this means holding the baby, fondling him, talking to him so that he becomes aware how precious he is to you; making him feel secure in his small world and providing stimulation for his developing senses.

When the baby is old enough to notice sounds (at first he seems impervious to them) he needs to hear soft, loving voices speaking to him. He enjoys hearing soft, melodious music playing near him.

WHEN HE IS old enough to look at you and really see you, he needs someone at whom to look and who will respond to him lovingly. He also needs sights upon which to feast his eyes.

One mother said her baby would not play alone and remain contented. She remarked, further, that the windows in her home were so high you could not see out of them. She asked if this would have any influence un his discontent.

It might have some, since babies, as soon as they can be propped up, enjoy looking out of windows and are fascinated by activities outside. They also love to look in mirrors.

They are attracted to colorful objects and a bright pillow or two, or some bright scarves in their line of vision or even just a length of brilliant wall paper hung up where they look at it is satisfying to them.

FROM FOUR months and on a child can hold a lightweight rattle in his hand, or a piece of crackly paper crumpled together. He'll love looking at colorful toys hung beside his bed, or stretched from one rung of his crib to another, within on your legs. . .

CHEF OF THE WEEK Havekorst in Second Appearance as Cook

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

He's living the life of a retired ban'eer. What could be sweeter than that? Walter B. Havekorst, today in his second round as Chef of the Week, forsook the Kansas prairies for the sagebrush of El Centro, Calif., and a prosperous law practice for a purebred Guernsey herd.

Actually, it wasn't all brought about on a "wing and a prayer"-just a wing. Following graduation from Kansas University with a degree in law, he joined the Air Force, became a lieutenant, and was stationed at North Island (San Diego) during World War I. After that his home town of Hanover, Kan., lost all appeal for him, so-he and his belongings settled in El Cen-

AFTER TWO years, in 1933 to be exact, he extended himself to Brawley. and joined the staff of the Bank of America. Twenty years later he was transferred to the bank's head offices in Los Angeles, and from there to Long Beach in June-1946 as manager of the 1st St. and Pine Ave. branch. After 36 years of banking, most of which he had served as a vice president, he retired last year.

HAVEKORST, a past president of the Chamber of Commerce, presently is prexy of the Long Beach Council of Navy League, and is a director of the Community Hospital, the Convention Bureau, the Miss Universe Pageant, and of the Armed Services YMCA. # Oswald Jacoby Light Bid Is Opener Aid East's opening club bid was a real cream puff. He won the opening club lead with the ace and shifted to the three of hearts. South played the seven and West won with the jack. He returned the suit and East's queen fell to South's ace.

South played a trump to dummy, ruffed a heart, played another trump to dummy, ruffed the last heart, discarded a diamond on the king of clubs and was now ready to attack the diamond suit.

HE USED East's opening bid as a means to tell him how. East needed both the ace and jack of diamonds for his opening bid so South simply led a diamond to dummy's queen. East won with the ace and was endplayed. A club lead would give declarer a ruff and discard while a diamond lead would be allowed to run around to dummy's ten spot.

South kidded East about his light opening bid but the last laugh was East's.

LONG.BEACH, CALIFORNIA, MARCH 1, 1959

OUR COVER

Winter, summer, autumn, spring—they're all the same to the Southland sailor. Give him a sail full of wind and a touch of the tiller and he's ready to go regardless of season, as demonstrated by the Newporter ketch "Nancy S," owned by William E. Jones of Santa Monica. Bundled against a brisk breeze, the party aboard presents an unusual late winter picture as they tack across the outer harbor here. An exceptionally popular boat in this area, the 40-foot Newporter was designed and built specifically for offshore sailing by Clarence E. Ackerman of Newport Beach. In little more than three years since the first one made its appearance, more than 70 have been sold. For a look at other boating activity during the brief off-season in the Long Beach area, see Page 9.

It's no small matter to kill a whale, but it's still being done right here in Pacific waters, belief to the contrary notwithstanding. Next week, in story and pictures, Southland tells how whaling ships operate today, and gives you an idea of the thrill of the chase that spurs these old salts as they set out again and again in quest of a sea that blossoms with feathery spouts.

New Faces Along the Trail

By Terry Vernon

SUCCESS of "Wagon Train" in its first year and its current strong rating in the second season may have sparked a new trend for the Western on TV. A continuing storyline with movement of locale may write finis to the stay - at - home shows like "Gunsmoke."

Latest entry in the shootem-up field is "Rawhide" on CBS and it has the movement of a herd of 1,500 cattle for its gimmick of changing scenery. This is the largest herd ever assembled for a TV film and enables the producers to introduce new characters as the herd moves from place to place.

One of the two regular stars is Eric Fleming, a twofisted he-man type reminiscent of Clark Gable in real life. Gable, ex-oil field worker and roustabout, became the biggest box-office attraction

Clint is married to a bathing suit model and lives in Studio City. He enjoys swimming and listening to Dixieland and jazz music.

Shadow box that can be put together by any home handy man provides for displaying souvenir spoon collection.

By Jane Hamer

SOUVENIR and heirloom spoons are conversational pieces but methods of display pose problems. A glass-enclosed, shadow-box spoon holder is the attractive and practical solution worked out by Mrs. Frank J. Hardesty. This way she keeps her spoons dust-free and untarnished, too.

Two spoon picture frames flank the buffet mirror in the Hardesty home. In each of them are fastened 26 spoons in three rows of eight or nine. Mrs. Hardesty arranged the spoons in the desired pattern, marked their positions with chalk and then sewed each into place on velveteen cloth stretched over the cardboard back. Silver colored nylon thread was sewn tightly, once just above the bowl and again at a narrow or convenient place on the handle.

IT IS EASIER to sew on the spoons while the vel-veteen is fastened over the cardboard inside bottom of the shadow box, as their weight will pucker the cloth otherwise. Gummed tape and thread sewn across the back. hold the cloth in place. If the resulting placement of spoons is not perfect to the critical eye, Mrs. Hardesty says, don't worry. Admiring viewers are too interested in the details of each spoon and in admiration of the whole idea, to pick flaws.

A picture frame shop made up Mrs. Hardesty's holder from her specifications but any man handy with tools could put his own together with shadow-box picture frame material, she says. Inside the main frame, it is necessary to set a second frame of molding about an inch wide, allowing for the thickness of the glass at the top and for the bottom board below. The entire job is best described as fitting together like a cardboard box, with the bottom smaller so that the top can fit over it.

Over-all measurements of the spoon holder pictured elsewhere on this page are 15x19 inches and the glass is 14x171/2 inches. The inside open space for the spoons is about one inch deep while the outside thickness is 21/2 inches. The bottom of cardboard or masonite must be cut to fit snugly inside and yet leave enough space for the lap-over of the cloth background for the spoons. With spoons firmly in place, fit in the back and fasten with picture-frame nails. Then cover the whole back with plastic or feil, gum taped to make it air-tight. Silver kept away from air does not tarnish readily and the spoons will not need polishing oftener than once a year, if at all.

THE USE OF PLASTIC or wax spray is not recom-mended as the whole idea of the enclosed box is to allow the natural color and luster of the silver and ornamentation to show. Screw-eyes are used with picture wire to provide a means for hanging the frames.

Mahogany with light mahogany stain is used for the frame illustrated while the inside molding and the velveteen are golden. Colors sclected should compliment the room in which the spoons are to be hung. Sizes and shapes of the whole shadow-box frame may vary to fit the number of spoons to be mounted or wall space to be filled.

MRS. ANNA ARMBRUST . . . Anna Heloise Today . .

F WE are going to produce ballerinas and danscurs (male) to compare favorably with those trained in the European schools, we are going to have to stress technique and precision performance more rigidly," says Mrs. Anna Armbrust of 391 Molino Ave., and Anna, the former Anna Heloise-one of the three prima ballerinas of the early Ernest Belcher University of the Dance—should

Anna declares that England has produced some of the world's greatest dancers, because of the public appreciation of classical dancing as well as the fact that so many of the thoroughly trained Russian dancers, both before and after the revolution, have gone into England to set up schools. Sweden, Denmark, and France have also produced many great ballet artists.

"The United States has not encouraged the ballet to the extent that the European nations have, with financial backing But we have some superior ballerinas in America today, such as Nora Kaye, Nana Gollner, Maria Tallchies and Agnes Demille.

ANNA HAD NO IDEA of becoming a star when she took up dancing. She was a frail girl and was enrolled in dancing school primarily to improve her health. The frailty was soon a thing of the past. She had the natural qualities necessary for a ballerina, such as high curved arches, a small lithesome physique, and dauntless determination. She was also blessed with parents who aided her in every way to reach the heights of stardom.

She was given two private lessons a week, six class lessons, and she practiced from two to four hours a day. To do all this, she had to forego all of the usual girlhood activities, such as parties and dates. She was not permitted to walk far, ride horseback, swim, or even to play the violin. These activities were considered non conducive to good technique. She has never tasted alcoholic beverages or cigarettes. To Anna, this was no sacrifice. She was living in a world of aesthetic beauty, and doing what she most wanted to do.

After six years of rigid training, Anna Heloise was ready for her first professional performance as a prima ballerina. She was booked at the California Theater in Los Angeles. This first performance will always stand out (Continued on Page 31)

MANA POINT has changed so much that Richard Henry Dana, for whom it was named, would not recognize it today.

A new pier where boats may dock extends 300 feet from a wide parking area at the water's edge. This level fill was made by depositing 5,000 tons of rock in the curve of the cove which is now reached by a high-gear, paved road. The road curves up the cliff midway to the point of land and may be reached from Dana Point Historical Marker by following Santa Clara Ave. north to Green Lantern St.

When Dana's boat anchored in the little rocky cove, sheer cliffs met the ocean all around so that sailors from his ship, the Pilgrim, had to wade ashore and climb out. They came in 1835 to trade with Mission San Juan Capistrano. They managed to get their trade-goods to the crest but upon receiving hides in trade, lost their patience. They tossed them over the side down to the sea. There, other sailors gathered the cattle skins and "taking them upon their heads, walked off to the boat.

SIX MONTHS LATER, when the Pilgrim returned, the same procedure was followed but with less success. Many hides lodged in crevices and Dana was lowered by rope down the steep face of the cliff to retrieve them. The hides probably were blown into the cliff by the prevailing ocean wind about which he wrote two years later: "What a sight, thought I, this place must be in a southeaster."

His book, "Two Years Before the is a graphic description of California life during that pastoral era and of the places he saw. He pictured the cove, now Dana Point, thus: "San Juan is the only romantic spot on the coast. The country here for several miles is high table land, running boldly to shore, and breaking off in a steep cliff at which the waters of the Pacific are constantly dashing. Directly before us rose the perpendicular height of 400 or 500 feet." Actually, the rise was not that great as today it is about 125 feet from the miled area.

The problem of southeasterly winds still exists and a secluded harbor needs the protection of a breakwater. Such a project will cost 8 to 9 million dollars, according to H. Morgan Noble, engineer. The Orange gan Noble, engineer. The Orange County Harbor District Board expects to carry out the plan with the help of the Federal Government small harbors fund.

O. B. Pierson, Inc., of Bellflower, general contractors for construction of the pier used prestressed concrete piling and a 40-foot wooden deck. The 50-year-old pleasure pier was first removed. Pierson, when consulted on the job, stated that 10 feet would be dredged from the bottom following placement of a jetty.
This would facilitate launching and docking of larger boats from Dana

FROM THE PIER, one looks up the cliffs on which Dana swung to a lookout shelter on the 101 Highway level. An historical marker nearby calls the cove below "El Embarcadero" in explaining how it was used by vessels particularly during 1830-40 when trade with the Yankees was at its height. It tells, also, that Hipolita Bouchard, carrying an Argentine flag, anchored his fleet in 1818 to raid the mission and steal goods instead of trade.

Californians, had hides, tallow and beef in ahundance, which they were glad to trade. They resented excessive duties levied by Mexican customs officials, however, as much as the trading sailors so that smuggling became an accepted practice. Under cover of darkness, longboats would be launched at lonely inlets where men waited to unload hardware, cotton cloth, shoes, porcelain dinnerware, spices and other merchandise. When one of these vessels was discovered at anchor one night near San Pedro, the customs men began a search for smuggled goods. Upon discovery in the Los Angeles home of Don Abel Stearns, a valuable store of silks and liquor was immediately confiscated.

Another trader was caught in San Pedro Bay with only a token cargo and an altered list of goods while trying to evade customs. This was John Lawlor, master of the Hawaiian brig Karimoko, who had hidden his cargo on Catalina Island where it was later

ALSO ACCUSED of smuggling, was Capt. John Bradshaw, but his story is different. He made a defiant escape from San Diego Harbor where the Mexican officials had impounded his ship and cargo. Capt. Bradshaw ordered his schooner Franklin's anchor cable cut that July morning of 1828, while his mate shouted for the crew to "lay aloft and loose the top sails." As they stood out to sea, the Mexican fort opened fire. Cannon balls splintered the wooden hull, a broken spar fell to the deck and grape shot tore the sails but the Franklin escaped after her guns delivered an answering broadside against the fort.

Dana's ship was not involved with the Mexican authorities. The captain was able to keep his peace in spite of a temperament which found outlet in being a tyrant over his crew, in-cluding young Dana. After a voyage around Cape Horn from Boston, the Pilgrim's ports of call were San Diego. San Pedro, Santa Barbara, Monterey and San Juan Capistrano.

It is fitting that the little cove should bear the name of the sailor-author, Richard Henry Dana, for he was impressed by its beauty. He wrote "There was a grandeur in superstring around and a human everything around . . . not a human being but ourselves for miles and no sound heard but the pulsations of the great Pacific."

Dana Point is a familiar landmark along the south coast. High gear road seen at right leads down to new fill area.

Haulout Before The Breath of Spring

UNLIKE most boating areas, the Southland offers the ardent sait only a few short weeks out of the year when he can take his craft out of the water without missing anything. Even during those 40-odd days of the off-season, from mid-January to March 1, the climate frequently affords excellent sport without discomfort. But the prudent yatchtsman, fisherman and small boat enthusiast takes advantage of the luli for the annual haulout, inspection or delayed repair job. Then he is ready at the first breath of spring for another ten and a hall months of uninterrupted boating.

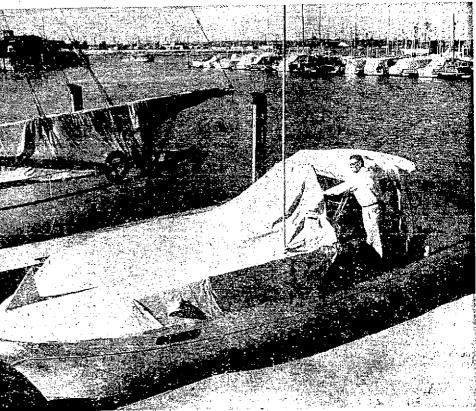

Utilizing winter Iuli, Skipper Carl Poterson, 778 W. 7th St., San Pedro, touches up stays of 79-ft. schooner, Queen Mab, due for Honolulu race, cruise to Tahiti.

My, How Spanky Has Grown!

By Carl Rogan

OLY-POLY, beanle - capped Spanky of the "Our Gang". comedy movies is a modern-day Peter Pan. He has never grown

At 30, Spanky is still clowning, still roly-poly and still wearing his beanie. The resemblance to the Spanky of 20 years ago is astounding-there are really only two changes.

"There's more of me," he admits. And now he shaves.

But Spanky - whose real name is George Robert Phillips McFarland -- doesn't like his eternal youth. He wants to grow up.

"I know I can do comedy," says McFarland. "Now I'd like to do some serious parts."

McFARLAND is now doing daily half-hour television shows over a Tulsa, Okla., station.

Wearing his beanie, a T-shirt and knee-length trousers, he gathers area youngsters as guests in a kids-style clubhouse. "The Spanky Show" is all Mc-Farland - twisting his round, cherubic face in expressions of dismay and leading his kid guests in wild situation comedies.

McFarland claims to have been a member of the old "Our Gang" movie team longer than any others, including Farina (Allen Hoskins), Froggy (Robert McLaughlin), Buckwheat (Billy Thomas) and the late Alfalfa (Carl Switzer).

HAL ROACH developed the series in the 1920s before the advent of talking pictures. He originally planned two or three comedies a year but the demand by exhibitors resulted for a time in one-a-month production.

In 1938 Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer acquired control of the series. It still retains the "Our Gang" title copyright so TV viewers see the movies under another title, "The Little Rascals."

McFarland was living in Dallas, Tex., when, at the suggestion of an aunt, Mrs. J. G. Frye of Fort Worth, Tex., he was drafted into the Hal Roach series during a talent search.

When he started in 1931 at McFarland says, no acting ability was necessary. The producers "created a situation and let you do what you want-ed." The weak points would be edited out of the film and what remained set audiences rocking with mirth.

"AT THAT TIME I thought everyone was in the movies because I grew up in them," Mc-Farland says.

He believes there still is "a definite place" for such comedy - more now in TV than motion pictures.

He approached TV officials in Tulsa about his present show at a time when the station had daily film showings of the Roach series. His personal appearance would increase the appeal, the station felt, and he was signed first to a 13-week contract, then to a

McFarland now is something of a producer, filming 3 to 5 minutes of situations involving kids which are shown daily on his show. Reviewing one film, he let loose one loud laugh after another in delight at the predicament of would-be cattle rustlers who had the mistortune of meeting Spanky's gang

Pudgy young man on Tulsa TV is Spanky of "Our Gang" fame. Still in beamie and knickers. George McFarland entertains youngsters on "The Spanky Show."

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the origin of McKEW and the connection with Mc-Cue, McQue, McHugh, Mc-Keough and Kew Gardens, London.-P. M., Wilmington.

P. M.: The McKEW lineage originated in Ulster, north Ireland, more than 1,000 years ago. Their ancestor, Aoda, whose name meant "fire," was a famous leader. The original Gaelic name MacAoda was modernized to MacKew, Mac-Hugh, MacQuey and MacQue. MacAoda however is not the source of McKeough which you mention (formerly Mac-Eocada), nor of Kew Gardens, a London park, which began as Kay-Hoe meaning "wharf on the landspit."

DEAR MISS RULE: We are Interested in the origin of SPRAGUE.—D. S., I. S., Long Beach.

D. S., I. S.: SPRAGUE was an English dialect form of the surname Sprack. It comes from an old Norse word "sprack" introduced to England in the 10th Century, meaning "lively, quick one." William Sprack, a family ancestor, was a south English taxpayer in Somerset, 1327. The American ancestor, William Sprague, was married in Fairfield, Conn., in 1679; his descendants migrated to Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York State and later to

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly tell about the surname MOR-AVEK. - MRS. J. M., Long Beach.

J. M.: Centuries ago each man who ventured forth from his own country to settle in a strange land was surnamed by his new neighbors after his former home. Such men were called "The German," "The Swede," etc. The Slavic surname MORAVEK means "Son of the Moravian." Moravia, the home of the family progenitor, was a province in the central part of Czechoslovakia. No coat-of-arms is available for this name.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like your analysis of WEIBEL and WAIBEL.—G. N., R. A., Long Beach; G. W., Lakewood.

G. N., R. A., G. W.: WEI-BEL and WAIBEL were from a German occupational title used in the Middle Ages. A 'Weibel" was a court-usher in the castle or palace of a nobleman. The Weibel coatof-arms, granted in Basel, Switzerland, and the Waibel shield, granted in the German Grand Duchy of Baden, were the same, a gold lion centered on a shield divided in half crosswise, the upper part red, the lower half green.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please tell the origin of FROST.— L. F., M. D., M. F., P. F., Long Beach.

A BARGAIN hilitop lot has been turned adroitly to advantage in this house designed exclusively for the House of the Week series.

By exploiting the natural advantages of sloping land, New Jersey architect Alan Wood Fraser has virtually doubled the living area of a house under one roof without measurably increasing the construction cost.

The end result of this design, designated X-3 in the House of the Week series, is that you get extra rooms without a basement-high win-

AN IMPORTANT part of the construction savings is achieved in the excavation.

The house is placed on the pinnacle. The front looks down one sloping side to the street. The rear of the house sits on the back slope. The excavation is made into the back slope of the lot. Space for the basement area is dug out of the rear slope, and the rear wall of the house extends upward from the base of the rear slope.

The architect has further exploited his design by creating a mid-level foyer. The foyer opens from a front entrance off a porch dropped five steps from the front side-

Thus, although the exterior of the house resembles a ranch, the dropped porch and the mid-level foyer actually provide some features of a ranch plus split level and twostory planning.

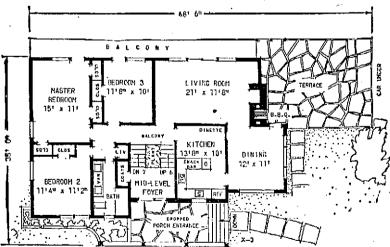

THE MID-LEVEL, foyer works toward this end in this way:

It links the lower level with the upper level and converts both into family living areas.

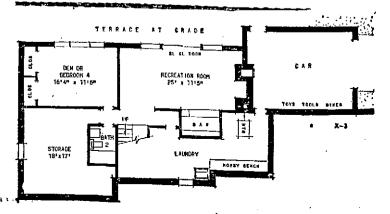

There is no need to have a family room on the upper level because there is a recreation room on the terrace level only seven steps down from the foyer.

The mid-level foyer likewise creates a center hall on a balcony up six steps from the foyer.

From the central hall halcony, there are three bedroom is seen beyond the top of stairs leading to central half. Back of living room is rear balcony.

rooms sharing the wing to

The major living area has 1,352 square feet of floor space. The basement area has the same square footage but the architect says the cost of the basement area will be about half the cost of the upper area. The garage has 355 square feet. Over-all dimensions of the house are 68 feet 6 inches by 35 feet, including the rail-enclosed terrace and the garage under it.

At one end of the rear balcony, on the same level as the dining and living rooms, is a terrace enclosed by ornamental railing.

Under this terrace, which is partially sheltered, is the garage.

THE BASEMENT area, seven steps down from the foyer, has a storage room, a guest lavatory serving the lower den or bedroom, a recreation room 25 by 11 feet 5 inches, and space for utilities, laundry and heating plant.

THEN a young Long Beach couple decided that they would get the most for their money by building their own house, they set about "jelling" the ideas and dreams that, to them, con-stituted "home."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood, 5568 Oleta St., wanted some of the functional, contemporary design they had heard about in college lectures and had read about in articles on architecture. They had a few heirlooms with which they refused to part, but they had no desire for a period theme in their house. They took these ideas, their hopes for the future, their hobbies, habits, pet peeves and fondest dreams of home and laid them before an architect— Thomas J. Russell, AIA. They also laid down the frame of non-stretchable budget within which dreams must be made to come true. Russell juggled expenditure against expectation and squeezed the greatest living potential possible from every dollar spent per inch of floor space.

THE EXTERIOR OF the Wood's delightful, 2,000square-foot domicle radiates an atmosphere of warm welcome. A wide drive curves to the garage in a sweeping contour past the entry. This one feature, alone, seems to ex-tend an invitation to "drive in and stay a while." A gently sloped roof offers benevolent shelter with its wide and shielding overhang. Sandal-wood stucco, rough-sawed, vertical redwood siding, cantilevered beams, eggerate and structural lattices-all add interesting dimensions to the exterior that is this entity emhellished with well-planned landscape detail. Under the extensive roof overhang is a low slate landing that leads to the front door. Fixed glass panels at door height combine with clerestory windows to lend the entry and the living room to the left a magna-mimous "open" quality. Wheat-tone, hand-woven draperies afford necessary privacy while permitting a diffused flow of light through the glass.

The entry is floored with cork. Exposed beams of the high ceiling extend out to support the exterior roof overhang. The manner in which they project, almost fluidly, through the glass partitions gives the house delightful marriage with the outdoors. Opposite the door, the wall is paneled in vertical redwood boards glazed a light driftwood-tan. This wall extends into the living room where it terminates in an area of sliding glass.

The high ceiling of the entry and living room is one all-inclusive and uninter-rupted plane. The wood ceiling, itself, has been painted cream while the exposed beams are a soft shade of

THE PLAN OF THE HOUSE allows for two separate areas of living. One is the living room, per se, that offers a gracious respite that is quite separate from the activity areas and mercifully untrammeled by traffic lanes. The other is a family area located directly beyond the entry and situated to inte-grate with the open kitchen.

The living room is located to the left of the entry where it can enjoy a garden view through its sliding glass doors, plus a shaded vista of the entry court through fixed glass panels adjacent to the front door. Balancing all this "openness" is the cozy welcome of an open fireplace situated in the paneled wall and flush with the floor level.

Sand-colored, looped carpet meets the cork flooring of the entry in a rounded contour. A grand piano stands at the far end of the room; other furnishings are modestly scaled and harmoniously upholstered.

Directly ahead of the entry one walks into the family area with its loftily pitched ceiling and its expansive glass wall. This wide open, sunswept room is the activity area for the Woods' three children—a spot for games, informal dining and televiewing.

OPEN BOOKCASES of natural ash separate the kitchen work area from the family room. On the kitchen side of this divider is the sink, a feature which enables Mrs. Wood to remain very much a part of the family even when she is performing such mundane chores as washing dishes. Integrated with this divider is a cantilevered counter wide enough to serve as a family dining table.

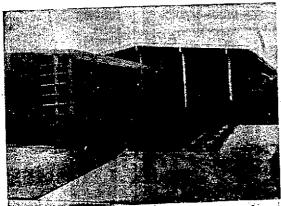

Birch cabinets utilize the same material as the family room paneling, integrating materials in the two areas. But most architecturally significant is the change in ceiling level between the two.

For, in sharp contrast to the high sloped ceiling of the family room is the level, standard-height plane of the kitchen ceiling. This extends a short distance out into the family room where it becomes an effective light soffit that throws dramatic illumination upon the slanting beams.

Further evidencing the architect's endeavor to endow this house with proper lighting is the flush skylight located in the kitchen ceiling directly over the work, counter and dining table extension. Faced with obscure glass, it radiates the luminescence of natural sunshine by day. At night, concealed lights do the trick. Other flush ceiling lights eliminate the grim lights household chore of cleaning pendant fixtures. Finally, lights concealed under the suspended wall cabinets effectively, yet invisibly, illum-inate all work counters.

Here, then, is any mother's ideal of a dream kitchen. She can prepare meals within view of the television—the children at play—the beauty of the garden. Natural sunlight cheers her chores by day; at night there are no dark corners to make cleaning a problem.

Located at the back of the plan, in simple and orderly fushion are three bedrooms and two baths.

this house. Lattice, informal fence add light fouch.

Built in 1867, the original two rooms of this dwelling are a true Heritage House of Compton's pioneer period.

🌣 By Helen Smith

For TOPS in SWIMMING pleasure GO

TO SOME it was just an old house standing in the way of progress, its days numbered.

To others it represented the pioneer beginnings of Compton and, as such, definitely worth saving.

The house stood at 209 S. Acacia St., one of a few scheduled to be razed to clear the ground for a new-fire department building.

In 1955, following extensive research, the Hutchins-Grayson Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, placed a bronze plaque on the house proclaiming it the "oldest house in Compton."

15'x35' Newporler

HEATED WITH A

APPARENTLY THAT distinction was not enough to save it as plans for the new fire station went rapidly ahead.

Finally, a last minute rescue by a group of interested citizens, who raised $3,000 for the project, resulted in the house being moved intact to its present location in City Park, located off Compton Blyd, between Acacia and Willowbrook Sts.

The original two-room home, which has now ex-panded to seven rooms, was built in 1867 by A. R. Loomis at about the time Griffith Dickenson Compton and fellow pioneers arrived by wagon train to found a new community.

One of the first occupants was Mrs. Mary Brown, a pri-mary grade school teacher, and her daughter, Annie.

Four different owners occupied the dwelling until 1881 when William A. Gaines bought it after his marriage to Elizabeth Lord. A Mary Gaines is reported to have purchased it in 1907 and her unmarried daughter, Sophia; lived there until her death in 1948 at the age of 80 years.

NOW KNOWN AS "Heritage House," it is painted barn red with white "ginger-bread" trim. It is open to the public from 1 to 4 p. m. on Thursday, Friday and Sat-

Although completely furnished, only a wooden mixing bowl and nutmeg grater on display were actually used by Sophia Gaines.

Citizens of Compton have donated articles of the era to recreate a home-like setting. The parlor boasts an organ and upholstered velvet and mohair furnishings.

Easter observances can be made more effective by use of this beautiful picture, shown with NBC's Claudia Dehring.

Picture for Easter

By Steve Ellingson

TWO WOMEN, walking down Broadway in Los Angeles, stopped to join a crowd surrounding a department store window. To their amazement they saw a beautiful Easter scene in which the ascension of Christ had been most graphically depicted.
"Well, can you imagine that?" one exclaimed to the other, 'now they're trying to put religion in Easter, too."

In today's world there is a great deal of frustration; cleverness replaces honesty, sophistication replaces virtue, and fictitious characters replace the divine. It was with a great deal of satisfaction that, with the help of the Christ In Christmas Committee, we created a nativity scene that helped put Christ back into Christmas. I say satisfaction because of the thousands of homes that erected these scenes, and their soft illumination witnessed to a passing world that Christ-mas celebrated the birth of Jesus

NOW, AND AT the request of a great many church leaders and others, we have taken another step toward spiritual restoration. An effort to put Christ back into Easter.

To show Christ's triumph, the glorious experience of His Resurrection, we have created a scene in full color in which the smiling Christ stands, as if in life itself, beheld by, and loving, all mankind. We are so pleased with the artistry and message of this depiction that we believe not only will churches desire them, but as was true of the nativity scene, homes all over America will want them.

IN AN AGE of Nike's, missiles, and rockets . . . with guns aimed at foreign soil, and the problems of integration turning brother against brother . . . what a glorious Easter it would be to have reminders all over America that Jesus did rise from the grave.

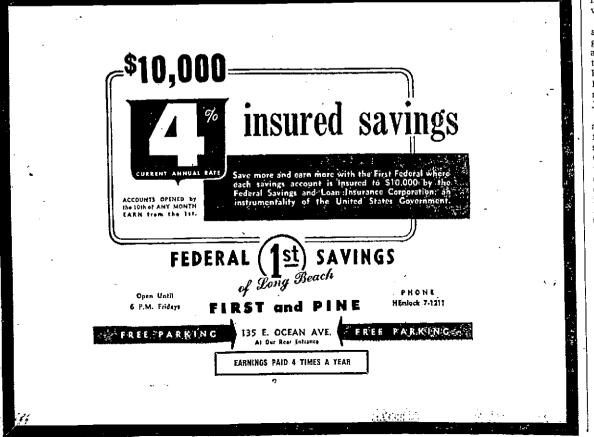

The Easter scene shown above on this page may be framed and used as a giant size indoor or outdoor picture. Or, as with the nativity scene, the figure of Jesus may be cut out and displayed either indoors or out. It comes to you in full color. All that's necessary is to paste the picture to plywood, then either frame it or saw it out. Complete directions for framing, water-proofing and even making the easel are included.

By substituting a half cup of real mayonnaise for the former white sauce-egg yolk combination, simplification has come to art of souffle making

Now It's the Easy-Way Souffle

By Mildred K. Flanary

VERY SO OFTEN, thank goodness, something really new comes along to enable the home cook to serve a delicious dish in about half the preparation time she has always felt that particular dish required. This time, it is souffle making which has been greatly simplified. Once it was necessary to cook a white sauce on the top of the stove, cool this and add egg yolks to it, add other ingredients such as cheese or meat, fold in beaten egg whites and then put the concoction in the oven for baking. The whole operation of souffle making is now streamlined to the point where no top-stove cooking is needed and all preparation can be completed and the souffle put in the oven in a few minutes. The trick is in substituting a half cup of real mayonnaise for the former white sauce and egg yolk

We'll give you the basic recipe and procedure and list a few variations to enable you to turn out meat, fish, cheese or vegetable souffles. The new-way souffle would be a

Now let's call this much ."Mixture A," and let's remember that this much is the same for all the won derful new-way souffles. Now sprinkle lemon juice over crabmeat and mix with celery and pimiento. Call this "Mixture B" and stir it into Mixture A. Now beat egg whites stiff and fold into them combined Mixtures A and B. Cut and fold until all is thorough

Broccoli, spinach, mushrooms-in fact, almost any vegetable you like plain -goes wonderfully into these fast new souffles. Just be sure whatever vegetables you use are well drained, and scasoned vertising from the Govern-ment," replied my wife. "It's on the coffee table."

I glanced at the bills and the New Yorker, put cousin Emily's letter aside until I had time to decipher her handwriting, and picked up the advertising from the Government, the Federal Income Tax Forms for 1958. Then I went into the kitchen where my wife was preparing dinner.

"Dear," I said, "there are certain things which, at your age, you should know. For example, the Government does not advertise. This," I held up the forms for her to see, "is an income tax to see,

"How do you suppose they got our name and address?" she said, putting a polato in boiling water.

"THEY SEND THEM to all taxpayers," I explainéd. "We've had such forms every year. We do pay in-come tax you known—or do vou?" I added as an after-

While my wife has many fine attributes and is a gorgeous, lovable creature, she has less sense about money than any person I've ever encountered. Recognizing this failing, we have had a mutual understanding that I would handle all money matters while she would pleas antly accept my rulings on all finances. I have always, therefore, taken care of the income tax problem, with paid help when it came to making out the final form itself. However, at this point it occured to me that my wife was even more ignorant than I had thought, in her blissful, unconcerned way.

"HONEY," I SAID, "you haven't the slightest idea what income tax is all about. It concerns money, remember, about which you know less than nothing." "That," she said, "is a challenge. This year we will do our income tax together. I even have a few ideas which might save us money."

The following Saturday afternoon we sent the children to a matinee (five cartoons, two science fiction thrillers, and one comedy and got to work.

"Let's start with deduc-tions," said the gorgeous, lovable creatine as she thumbed through the Government advertising booklet. "I gave 50 cents to the sweet little scissors man who came to the door just before Christmas. He only charged a quarter, but I knew he needed the money so I gave him 50 cents. And then, of course, I gave that old billiard table to the rummage sale in No-vember and it must have been worth ten dollars."

"You don't mean to tell me you gave that billiard table away to a rummage sale!" It had belonged to my grandfather, had years of good use in it yet, and I was

"DEDUCTIONS, DAR-LING," she said, patting my arm. "Let's stick to income tax and not get sentimental."

"But dammit I love that old table, and when we build the rumpus room it will be something that we'll need!" I was still mad.

"It cost us at least twentyfive dollars extra to have (Continued on Page 33) esamedinassenatumbunangsaudin disempunggasamokapamagati diagunangsi diagunang disempungga belawa di persum disempungga belawa di persumbungga belawa di pe CUTRATE DRUG STORES

THE VIVID characters of Robert Penn Warren in "At Heaven's Gate" (Random House, $4.95) seem to try to outdo each other in the employment of cvil.

BOOK REVIEWS

In this novel laid in the capital city of a Southern state in the late 1920s, Bogan Murdock is depicted as completely ruthless in maintaining the financial empire he has created in like fashion. Yet he seems, by comparison, at the end, with his empire shattered, a rather sympathetic character. This effect perhaps comes about by the manner in which he maintains his personal dignity when the other unsavory people who have brought about his downfall are, themselves, broken and defeated. Even his own heloved daughter—as in the case of Cordelia and King Lear turns against him and reaches a tragic end. Murdock, in fact, is apt to remind the reader of the man in Shakespeare's tragedy who stood alone and defiant with all turned against him.

There is cruelty and tenderness in this book; violence and compassion; big dramatic scenes and quiet erudite dis-cussions. And there is a great deal of poetry-as might be expected of a man who holds high honors both as a novelist and poet. This is a reissue of a book long out of print.

"THE BLACK MARCH" by Peter Neumann (Sloane Associates, $4): "In a few minutes you will be true SS men! In a few minutes you will have given yourselves body and soul to our Fatherland. ... Remember that your country can ask anything of you, can expect everything from you, including your life; and you must obey.

Those were the orders of Peter Neumann, who now writes this personal story of an SS man, his experiences in the terrorizing years 1936-1945, his indoctrination into Nazi theories, his service in Russia with the 5th (Viking) Division. With him the reader retreats through the Crimea with its trail of massacre and blood, and then the final retreat from Russia through Hungary where deserters were shot. He watches the fall of Vienna. "The Black March" perhaps better than any other postwar book shows what happens to men when they become brutes.

"THE DELUGE" by Muriel Elwood (Bobbs-Merrrill, $3.75): A chronicle of an entire French generation is this novel which is something more than a novel since it deals with real people as revealed by memoirs, diaries and letters. Miss Elwood makes her facts exciting, skillfully tracing the way two women went through the Revolution of 1830. These women are the two wives of Charles. Duc de Berry, heir apparent to the French throne follow-

ANDREW JACKSON

Fresh portraits of Andrew Jackson - the man so often portrayed as the heir of Thomas Jefferson and the forerunner of Franklin D. Roosevelt — and other national leaders of his time are painted by Glyndon G. Van Doren in "THE JACKSONIAN ERA: 1828-1848" (Harpers, $5). And Zachary Taylor comes to life, too, in this book about a time in American national affairs that is discussed too rarely.

"M Y BROTHER'S KIL-LER" by Jeremy York (Scribners, $2.95): The killer is Ritzy, a well-dressed Teddy Bear from London's East End, who wears a diamond signet ring on a little finger. His weapon is a tiny medical syringe whose plunger is automatic, and which emp-ties itself as soon as the needle is jabbed into the flesh. But the needle is sent into the brother of the in-tended victim by mistake, and now Ritzy must not only seek out and kill the man marked for death but also a girl who, suspecting he was stepping out on her, follows him and discovers his evil intentions. A wonderful tale of suspense.

"A HISTORY OF SEXUAL CUSTOMS" by Richard Lewinsohn, M.D. (Harper, $5.95): It's all here: The modus operandi of the man-woman team from the time of Adam and Eve to the Nevada marriagedivorce mill. Here is incest in early Egypt, the two careers of the Amazons, homosexuality as practiced centuries ago, the love life of Napoleon and other greats, changes in marriage laws through the years, Freud's pupils, marriage in Russia and the art of gold-digging in modern divorce courts. Dr. Lewinsohn is often witty though he writes, with casual detachment, covering his subject with thoroughness.

"AMERICAN HERITAGE: The Magazine of History" (American Heritage, $2.95):

soon may take to the highways, writes John Carlova in the February number of this hardcover magazine, and he believes that atomic energy will have to be converted into steam for transportation uses. In an article, "The Stanleys and Their Steamer," Carlova points out that even in the early 1900s the fabulous Steamer could go 200 miles an hour. His is one-of: more than a dozen richly illustrated articles in the issue,

"THE IMPACT OF AIR POWER" edited by Eugene M. Emme (Van Nostrand, $12.50): Here is a book that might well point to the rise or fall of civilization-a most comprehensive and thoughtfully selected compendium of significant statements by world leaders and thinkers on problems created by the rise of air power as an instrument of national policy, and by its influence upon the ways of achieving national security. Editor Emme's brilliant preface to each chapter, and notes relative to the manuscripts therein, clear up any confusion the reader might have in the reading or making use of the text as reference material.

"THE FIRST EASTER" by Peter Marshall; edited and with an introduction by Catherine. Marshall (McGraw-Hill, $3.50): The widow of the late internationally-known minister weaves from his many sermons a narrative of the first Easter, from the Last Supper through the Resurrection. The story is told in the same masterful fashion as "A Man Called Peter," the life story of her husband which she wrote in 1951 and which has sold more than a million copies and was made into a movie.

"MOMENT IN OSTIA" by Sister M. Therese (Hanover House, $3): There is one wonderful word to describe this strong collection of poems: Luminous. One of the most celebrated Catholic poets, the author of this new volume has something splendid to offer peoples of all faiths; and all lovers of poetry will find her uplifting utterances both clear and profound. There is variety too: religious experience, travel, friends, animals are some of her subjects; anyone who reads the poet's third book will be better and wiser.

"THE POOR MAN'S GUIDE TO EUROPE" by David Dodge (Random House, $3.50): This is the brand-new 1959 edition of the greatest of the great guides for the European traveler. It lets the reader in on all the tricks for saving money without being a pennypincher, and having more fun at the same time. Even those who never expect to take a trip to Europe will enjoy what Mr. Dodge has to say because his book is far mores interestings than most ing the settle for Navoleon ... ## The Old Gaslight Era Goes Modern

By Kathy Srack

IS THE gaslight a thing of the nostalgic past, tucked away with roma: tic memories of grandma's high buttoned shoes and grandfather's ele-

gararezaghezhererezherezherezhere

gantly drooping moustache? Don't you believe it!

Gas lamps, today, are as modern as two-car families and rock 'n roll music. Like a crop of healthy mushrooms, they are rapidly appearing in front yard planters and back yard patios. Available in several styles, they are moderately priced, easily installed and inexpensively operated by natural gas.

AN ADDED attraction to any home scene, the quaintly designed lantern is mounted on a sturdy black pole ap-proximately five feet high. Not requiring the services of a lamplighter, that familiar character of yesterday, they may be simply lighted manually at dusk or set and allowed to burn continuously with complete safety.

In the past few weeks, the gas lights have become conversation pieces, their cheery glow adding brightness and an air of antiquity to many land-scapes in the Southland.

Modernized, this gasligh sheds cheery glow and is reminder of another era.

...The Birds and the Trees

By Nell S. Lanadon

SINCE BIRDS and trees just naturally belong to each other it was quite logical that a single date was chosen for the observance of both Arbor Day and Bird Day. The date selected for California is March 7, commemorating the birthday of Luther Burbank, the noted American Natural-

Arbor Day and its tree-planting significance is well known in all parts of the United States but not too many Californians know the tree that was chosen to be the State Tree and which bird is the State Bird,

In 1931, the State Legislature gave official recognition to the California valley quail and in 1937 decreed that the redwood should be the State

THE CHOICE of the Redwood was not a difficult one to make. It is the most majestic and magnificent tree in the world and long considered to be the oldest living thing. Its two species, Sequoia sempervirens and Sequoia gigantea, are native to California and are found mainly in a belt 200 miles long from Placer County to County. Nowhere outside of California can these trees be found today. Fossil remains of the two species have been found in Alaska, Canada and Greenland indicating a wider ancient coverage of the Northern Hemisphere. The Sequoia sempervirens variety grows to a height of around 300 feet. The tallest specimen is 364 feet and stands in Humboldt State Redwood Park. Its rings indicate an age of more than 1,400 years.

The Sequoia gigantea generally does not attain the height of the other species but is larger in diameter varying from 20 to 35 feet. These trees are estimated to be more than 3,000 years old. The soft red-brown or tan colored bark of both species often is two feet thick. The foliage is blue-green, the leaves are small and the cones which mature in two years are only about two inches long.

I emerged from the wings in a sphere of light that shut out the world around me. I felt alone in the auditorium except for the soul stirring strains of Pon-chielli's Dance of the Hours. with the world famous Donnetelli conducting. I went into my dance with hardly a thought about routine. I was so well rehearsed that I could give all my thought to expression. I really poured out my soul in that dance. At the finale, amidst a roar of applause, I gathered up my veil, wrapped it about me and faded to depict the end of a perfect day."

To the once frail girl who had spent six years in preparation, this was indeed the end of a perfect day. She had earned her stardom, and there was a demand dancers then, as all of the large theaters were staging prologues. Anna had been booked at such theaters as the California, where she made her debut, Loew's State, the Kinema, the Grauman the-aters, Philharmonic Audi-torium, and the Hollywood Bowl. She has danced in motion pictures and once danced with the San Carlo Opera Company.

SALARIES THEN, in the 1920s, were $40 a week for group dancing (the ensemble), and from $75 to $125 a week for a soloist. Although that was good pay at that time, it wasn't nearly enough to cov-er the cust of lessons, costumes, and living expenses. Anna remembers a time when she had a theater engagement in San Francisco, and had to

A Man in Earnest

IN THE PAST two years, John McNamara, Belmont Shore actor-director. has had parts in 14 major movies and many TV produc-

Now he is hard at work directing the cast for "The Importance of Being Earnest," which opens March 6 at the Magnolia Theater, 2400 Magnolia Ave.

"I love the live theater," he says, "and it is a thrill to see the strides made by Magnolia in five years. And I find Long Beach a stimulating area in which to work.

"In Hollywood actors drop out at the call of a movie or TV role, leaving you with only half a cast.

"I am pleased, too, with the cooperation of other dra-matic groups and the drama departments of the Long Beach schools."

McNAMARA got his start in the Margo Jones Theater at Dallas, Tex.

A student of Drama School and the Pasadena Playhouse, he was invited in 1947 by Margo Jones to aid in developing her theater. He worked with her from its inception, and until 1950 assisted in her produc-tion of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke" Broadway.

In eight years of directing McNamara accumiated some remarkable credits. After four shows, he' was invited to direct Zasu Pitts in the Broad-way revival of "The Bat." He directed the Tufts Arena Theater in Medford, Mass., and the Sombrero Theater in Phoenix. There he worked with Vincent Price, Zasu Pitts and Ruth Chatterton in "The Cocktail Party," "Ram-shackle Inn" and "The Little Foxes." He squeezed in two seasons in Santa Barbara producing pageants in the Fiesta Bowl and a season in Santa Monica directing Zasu Pitts and Jane Darwell.

DESIRING TO RETURN to California for good, he came back to work in movies and

John McNamara's longrange project is to establish a professional community theater producing classics and original scripts—with Broadway in view,

Work on the Income Tax

(Continued from Page 24) Aunt Louise with us for a week last summer. Surely she can be a deduction, too," said the lovable one.

"Honey," I said patiently, "people don't figure income tax this way. You don't think of this and think of that and call it a deduction. You keep records. Look." I showed her records I had kept of sales taxes, gas and oil expenses, réceipts. . . .

"I don't see why they have a tax on purses," she stated. "Or cosmetics," she added. "How would I look without lipstick?"

"Fine as far as I'm con-cerned," I said "Most women wear too much make-up anyway."

"Perhaps you should have married an athlete," she said. "Shall we discuss income tax?" I asked,

"What do you think we're talking about?" she said. "Look, we were talking about deductions. When Tommy had his tonsils out it cost a lot of money. Why isn't that a deduction?"

"It comes under medical expenses," I explained.

"YOU MEAN THEY have a . column for that?" she asked, "Well, for heaven's what's so complicated about income tax? If it's all so cut and dried, what's the prob-Iem?"

"There is no problem," I "But you wanted to help out this year and you said you knew something about it."

"A dentist is a doctor," she

There was no answer to that so I reached for a cigarette.

"He charged eight dollars for cleaning my teeth," she went on,

"Medical expenses," I said. "Band-aids can add up," she remarked as she, too, reached for a cigarette.

"That's what I've been trying to tell you," I said. People keep records about each and every expense. Like I've been doing for years."

"THAT PIE I BAKED for the P-T.A. in November was a dilly. It cost me about 80 cents. Is that deductible?"

"Well, it is and it isn't," I said. (I wonder: is it or isn't it?)

"Remember the charity in March?" ball we went to in March?" said the lovable one. "What about the gown I bought just for the occasion?"
"You looked lovely," I said.

I tried to remember what color it was.

"Why isn't it deductible? It cost $39.95 on sale. I don't see why we couldn't deduct the full price of $60. Wouldn't you say it was worth it?"

"Would you like a martini?' I asked.

"Why, darling," she said.
"I'd love one. "Isn't it fun to work on business matters together?"

Memo to the Treasury John Camden, Dept.: I, worked out the Income Tax Form which is, today, being sent to Washington, D. C., without any help from my wife. I still have one question, however. Is the gift I gave her (a hundred dollar black stole on sale for $59.95) deductible? It was an expense which occurred when I had to make her promise to let me handle all matters pertaining to income tax; and something which I feel, is a highly legitimate reason.

The General Grant Tree, a 262footer with a base diameter of 35 feet, is known as the "Nation's Christmas Tree." Under its snow covered branches services are held at noon each Christmas Day.

The California valley quail, is found in many sections of the state. It is about the size of a pigeon or a dove with a helmet-like crest and blue coloration. The nest is a hollow in the ground lined with grass where the birds lay 12 to 18 white eggs spotted with brown.

CALIFORNIA conservation authorities have seen the importance of protecting the State Bird and have aided materially in helping to maintain their numbers in some areas and to increase them in others.

Federal aid to wildlife restoration during the past five years has promoted programs which have benefited the over-all conditions of the California quail.

The aim of Arbor and Bird Day, is to emphasize the need of planting and growing trees and promoting protection of all hird life.

Motoring Through Europe

An all-time high of 200,000 Americans will spend at least part of their 1959 European vacation's motoring on European roads and highways, predicts the Automobile Club of Southern California. The forecast is double the antici-pated 1958 figure.

The local American Automobile Association affiliate said issuance of international driving permits will reach a new high of 100,000 through AAA clubs by the end of this year. Total as of Nov. 1, 1958, was approximately 88,000. For the entire year of 1957, AAA issued 53,000 permits to overseas motorists.

Among the many reasons given for the increased European auto travel by American tourists were hotel and motel improvements on the con-tinent; greater use of roadside inns and converted castles; continued highway construction and maintenance; a greater familiarity of the outlying areas by the American tourists; and the flexibility and conveniences of automobile travel as known to people in the United States. The club pointed to the advent of the small European car as another influencing factor, claiming that many transatlantic travelers are most anxious to pick up an auto in Europe, previously paid for in the U.S., drive throughout the continent and then bring their vehicle to this country for continued use at home.

As evidence of the' trend towards motoring on European vacations, this country's oldest motoring organization revealed its European car rental operations increased over 20 per cent in the past ten months.

The Auto Club said its estimate of 200,000 Americans motoring in Europe next year might even be surpassed, due to the impact of jet transportation on the entire travel industry. With daily jet service depositing visitors to Old World cities by the hundreds, AAA expects many travelers will have to depend on the automobile to transport them out of the congested tourist areas to the less crowded fringe areas where accommodations are more easily ob-

Kindness Is the Goal

By Eleanor Avery Price

RGANIZING effective anti-cruelty programs for areas where animals now are unprotected, to wit, state and community levels, is the initial goal of the California branch of the Humane Society of the United States, recently incorporated in the office of Long Beach attorney Russell H. Pray.

The job will be done through public education, im-provement of state and local anti-cruelty laws, through organized demands for law enforcement by investigating cruelties and bringing them to public attention, and by co-operating with existing hu-mane societies, it was stated.

One of the HSUS's major activities under this goal will he to endeavor to prevent the breeding of surplus animals, the surplus of cats and dogs being about 50,000,000 annually, or almost 10,000 every hour. Pounds and humane societies are often criticized for practicing euthanasia, but if they did not do so, the land would be inundated with unwanted cats and dogs. Pounds and humane societies are, therefore, forced by the wrong others are doing into the role of executioner, for there are not enough homes to care for all the pets born.

IT IS ENTIRELY feasible that taxpayers can demand that public pounds require all females adopted to be spayed so that more unwanted cats and dogs won't need to be picked up and housed at the

> L. B. DOG SCHOOL

ENROLL NOW! GA 4-0937; ME 3-3930 taxpayers' expense. Taxpayers and private philanthrophy spending more than 50 million dollars a year on res-cue and control work, but still only a small fraction of homeless animals are helped.

It is hoped that animals at pounds get into good homes, but their surpluses make them "cheap." All too often a person who obtains a dog for the price of its license does not give it medical care when needed. Inexpensive pets also are often fed only what is handy, and all too frequently they are abandoned if their owners move away.

EXPERTS AGREE that the problem can be solved by spaying female dogs and cats that should not breed. Keeping all pets at home and especially controlling females at periodic times would help, but most owners of inexpensive pets don't bother to keep their charges in confinement at any time.
The HSUS is also working toward an enactment of humane slaughter laws in plants engaged in intra-state commerce; abattoirs not now covered by the federal humane slaughter law recently passed.

It costs little in money and time to become a member of the HSUS. Amy Spano, tele-phone GE 8-8715, is secretary.

ADVANCES in photography and improvements in . photographic equipment are not limited exclusively to the research labs of the major manufacturers. Many a camera fan, dissatisfied with available equipment, devises his own accessories or methods to make photography or its processes easier. Some are tiny items, the inspiration of a moment; others are major projects, taking years of work and painstaking labor with homemade materials.
For an example of a simple, ingenius idea, I turn to George Ward, traveling representative of the Plymouth Products Co., Chicago. On one of his joureys around the country extolling the virtues of fine-grain Ethol developer, he showed me his own accessory: a snap-on, snap-off camera strap link.

IN HIS TRAVELS, George always carried a 35-mm camera for any picture emergency. But in order for it to remain out of sight when not needed, the strap went around his neck and under one arm , and all under his facket. In this shoulder-holster position, the camera was safe, comfortable and inconspicuous.

However, when the camera was wanted for shooting, one jacket sleeve had to come off and the camera slipped over the arm. This was unhandy, but George figured out a home-made solution.

To the regular strap, , he added a small adjustable strap with a snap link at one end. Now he could bring the camera into use by disengaging one strap end by the snap link, pulling out the strap and snapping it back around his neck.

THIS DEVICE proved so popular that George and his wife have a small business going in the basement of their home to fill the orders.

For home-made ingenuity on a larger scale, we go to Detroit. Thanks to Free Press camera editor Arthur Juntunen, we have the story of Phil Rosenberg and his automatic color processing machine.

Phil, an auto engineer and former professional photographer and Air Force pilot, was unhappy with home color processing methods. They were cumbersome, sloppy and subject to human errors. So he built a crude pilot model of an automatic machine out of vacuum cleaner parts, tincans and other scrap materials. Then came years of perfecting his 'tin can' model until: could process color without fumes, flood or film damage by mechanical handling in a scaled, compact unit with liquid agitation and at a lower chine performed its "miracle in color" automatically and without a hitch. An Ektachrome color picture of writer Juntunen, taken on the spot, was processed successfully on the spot.

The machine consists of a control box and plastic tank atop a cabinet containing the motor and solutions. Different buttons on the control box determine which of the color film processes is to be used: Ektachrome, Anscochrome, Printon, Kodacolor, Type R or Type C Ektacolor.

After the Ektachrome sheet film was placed in the plastic tank under cover of a lightproof changing bag, the proper (Ekta) button was pressed and the machine started on its 14 vital steps using six different chemical solutions without further human attention.

After a few phases, a light flashed on beneath the plastic tank signalling the reversal process.

AT THIS POINT, Rosenberg removed the cover from the plastic tank. "From here on," he said, "you can watch the colors appear on the film."

Plans are under way to make the machine available to all, A small, compact unit for amateur home use will cost about $400. Larger, speedier, multiple units for commercial photo plants will range from $4,000 to $10,000.

LONG BEACH Camera Guild will hold two competitions—black and white prints and color slides at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Guild members have won honors in other club competitions. Elva Howard was given an honor award in the Photographic Society of America color slide competition in February, and Murray Shaner received honorable mention. Shaner also received an honorable mention for color in the Southern California Council of Camera Clubs.

CARL 'C. KISSEL, member of Long Beach Camera Guild and PSA, who spent six weeks in the Islands in 1957, will show colored slides on "Vacation in Hawaii" at the family night program Friday in Grace Methodist Church, 3rd St. and Junipero Ave.

MOW does it feel to be back in the air after being grounded for 13 years?

Like living again, according to Harry Ross, 43, owner and operator of Ross Aeronautics, new flying school and plane rental firm which opened doors at Abe Paster's Sunset Beach Airport last December.

No stranger to aviation, Ross held a glider pilot's license at 14, a power-driven aircraft license at 16, was chief pilot of a flying school at 19 and owner of his own school and charter service in Los Angeles at 23.
Just before World War II

Ross was operating 25 of his own planes out of three airports east of the Sierra in Owens Valley, training both military and civilian pilots. Then came his own enlistment in the Air Corps, and the end of his first career in private enterprise aviation.

"DURING THE WAR Mrs. Ross and I invested in our motel in Seal Beach, and when I was discharged we got pretty busy taking care of that business," Ross said in his new office, a bright recounted. "We were out driving one Sunday near Santa Ana Airport and I saw one of Bill Morrisey's new Model 2150 planes. That's all it took."

Harry Ross looks over Morrisey Model 2150, Santa Anabuilt plane that won him back to flying after 13 years.

"I have two Morriseys on order and we expect the first one any day now. We're going to call it 'Paladin.' There's a plane that really guns and will travel."

Improved safety features built into the Morrisey and other modern light planes convinced Ross it was time to get back into commercial aviation, he said. The school currently uses two Cessna 172s, a Tandem Taylorcraft and an Aeronca Champion.

ROSS ALSO HAS on order two of the new Cessna 150 two-place planes.

"That ought to hold us until summer, but then we probably will need some more aircraft," he estimated.

Ross keeps his stable of planes busy. In the first seven weeks of operation, the school soloed 17 students, all starting from zero hours flying time.

Instructors who have helped in this accomplishment are Pete Zogby, Ed Rice and Victor Wolski, The charter flight department is in charge of pilot Bill De Goede.

As mayor of Seal Beach, Harry Ross takes time from his flying activities for exercise of civic responsibilities.

"Fornaire," the 1959 version of the Forney Aircoupe, has sharp lines and is fast, economical to operate and easy to handle. It's comfortable, too.

ing Sy DOROTHY BOWER

NEW AIRCOUPE-Arnie Witchel and Tom Moxley, owners of the Skyline Co. in Torrance, were in Long Beach te demonstrate their '59 Fornev Aircoupe.

The "Fornaire" is a sleek, sharp-looking low winged 2place craft, with tricycle landing gear. It is designed for low cost operation—only 2.6c per operational mile - and handling case.

It has a spacious cabin, which is styled for beauty, and engineered for comfort, with a full unobstructed view of the instrument panel. The overhead, Sun-Filtered Canopy, provides the ultimate of flight vision (360 degrees).

We climbed into the neat little plane, pulled the automatic starter, and after per-mission to "take off," we ascended smoothly—climbing at the rate of 500 feet per minute.

TOM MOXLEY, our host, proudly put the Aircoupe through its paces. We were very impressed with the complete maneuverability of this airplane.

We learned that the all metal plane travels 22 miles on a gallon of gasoline. The metal MacCaulley propeller works quietly and efficiently.

At Tom's suggestion, I took the controls. We cruised at 121 m.p.h. and the plane is an absolute joy to handle. I noticed that, although the plane is light, it rides heavily in the air, overcoming air turbulence that would ordinarily jar a light craft. In a poweroff stall, the Fornaire glides smoothly, and under full pilot control. With full-power again, we found the plane to be so well coordinated, that slips, skids and spins are practically impossible. This air-plane is designed to make flying easier than driving a car for the novice pilot.

Tom informed us that anyone can solo the Forney Aircoupe in four to five hours.

Landing speed, in the final approach, is 76 m.p.h. We set the plane down easily, and taxied to the tie-down area in as simple a manner as one would park a car,

Tom Moxley, and Arnie Witchel extend an invitation to all of our readers for a demonstration ride in the '59 Forney Aircoupe.

Here's a Happy Garden Idea

By Joe Littlefield

WHAT WITH all the interesting tropical plantings, berms, fancy and colorful stepping stones, angles, modern fencing and minimum care ideas, its still refreshing to step into a charming old fashioned garden like that of Bill and Ida Meyn in Whittier. Looking into the garden from the rear of the house, visitors see two little figures atop a bird bath welcoming them into "their garden."

A point of interest, whether a well-cared-for rose bed, a garden seat, an arbor, a pool, a specimen plant or tree, a sun dial, or a bird bath, still adds a touch of down-to-earth livability that some modern plantings seemingly haven't heen able to grasp.

The Meyn's rough-finish stone pedestal with the couple intimately, discussing their garden, forms an appealing point of interest. The background is framed by attractive variegated holly. Suc-culents and an old-fashioned low edging in the foreground makes the planting area stand out like the largest gem in a

YOU CAN CREATE a similar effect, providing your garden contains some of the usual blooming ornamental shrubs, perennials, annuals, and a touch or two here and there of low edging plants.

Roses are among the most prolific bloomers, producing flowers almost the year around. If you haven't already pruned your roses, you should at once. After pruning, and scraping away old mulch, soak the soil thoroughly, then clean up and spray the roses. Use a spray containing sul-phur and a heavy dose of mineral oil. The sulphur is for fungus. The mineral oil is for control of scale, red spider mite, mealy bugs, white flies, and other overwintering pests. Thoroughly spray all areas of the branches, trunk, and the soil from the trunk on out to the edge of the plant basin.

Then, follow up by applyingthe bone meal, and fresh

Fuchsia Society

Tentative plans for the annual Fuchsia Flower Show of the California National Fuchsia Society and plans for the picnic and queen contest to precede the show will be discussed by executive directors and delegates of the society at 1:30 p.m. March 8 at a meeting in Hollydale School, 5511 Máin St., Hollydale. Elmer Monson of Long Beach is society president.

The show will be held June 17 to 21, inclusive, in the Great Western Exhibition Building, Eastern Ave. and Santa Ana Freeway, Los Angeles, in conjunction with the Great Western 48th Agricultural District's Dairy Show.

mulch of manure. Slowly but thoroughly soak the planting area. Start feeding the pruned roses when about an inch of new growth has developed. After that, fertilize about once a month through September.

NEWLY PLANTED roses shouldn't be fed till new growth is about an inch long. Then, spread an inch layer of steer manure around them. Again, soil must be thor-oughly moist before applying the manure. Soak well and keep moist for a few days after manure application. Don't feed rose food or bal-anced fertilizer to those new ones until a month and a half after the manure application. Naturally the first feeding or two with the strong fertilizer should be in much smaller amounts than when fertilizing an established rose bush.

It still isn't too late to plant bare root fruit trees, shade trees, flowering trees and roses, even though new growth has started. If they're packaged roses, take off the cardboard or plastic cover before planting. That way, you can spread out the roots when planting them in the ground. Be sure to keep the soil moist around newly set plants until you see new growth develop-old-fashioned bulb perennial that is always wel-come for cut flower use and color in the garden is gladiolus. You may already have planted some; if not set some out now.

. Two small figures stand atop a bird bath in this quaint garden arrangement.

IT'S FUN TO GROW flowers and harvest beautiful blooms. Its another story, though, when you have pest damaged plants or flowers. One of the most innocent looking yet damaging pests is the aphid. Spray for pests soon as you discover them. But don't continue spraying with an insecticide every day or two. Spray one day. Next four or five days, dislodge the aphids with a sharp stream of water. Then spray again. That way you are not as likely to build up too much spray residue and damage certain plant foliage.

Whites Light Up Dull Gardens

REY and white tones will do a lot to brighten your garden scene. The excessive use of clear white flowers as well as grey-toned leaves. Most of these ornamentals grow as easily as any of our more common annuals or perennials.

Shasta daisies thrive in practically every region of Southern California. Hybridists have developed several new strains that show very little resemblance to the Shasta daisies of a few decades ago. Many of the re-cent introductions have double flowers, the tones are almost clear white and the plants much more productive. Shasta daisies, depending on the particular strain, may be propagated from either seeds or plants.

FEW PLANTS will brighten your garden scene as effectively as Shasta daisies. Even just a few clumps scattered here and there throughout your landscape will work wonders. The clumps multiply and great masses of color are soon produced. For cut flowers, these ornamentals are in a class by themselves. A few of the better and newer shorts include: Chiffon: white, semi-double flowers with golden center; Marconi daisy: snow-white flowers of shaggy appearance often having a width of four inches; Esther Reed daisies: pure white, completely double florets; Majestic daisy; the largest of them all.

By Bob Gilmore

If you want a white rose and just can't wait until the dormant planting season, then try White Knight. This variety is free flowering, which means it produces intermittently throughout the year. It wants a sunny spot and plenty of ventilation; also lots of water during the summer. Like most other roses, White Knight is a heavy feeder.

IT IS TOO LATE in the season for seeding asters, but nurseries have available the small transplants, many of which may almost be in flower. It is advisable, however to select the smaller or younger specimens, as they do not suffer so much during the transplanting process. Asters are splendid annuals in Southern California for both late summer and early fall bloom. Excellent white tones are available in all the major classifications, including: California Giants, Princess, Super Giants, Early Beauty, Improved Grego and Queen of the Market.

The most popular lighttoned foliage plant for general culture in this area is centaurea candidissima, better known as "Dusty Miller." The leaves are most interesting being grey in tone and having a leathery appearance. The flowers are yellow but rather inconspicuous, the plant being grown entirely for the gay foliage tones.

FEW PLANTS ARE as colorful during the summer

Sow bugs (sometimes called pill bugs because they roll up into a little ball when touchhave become a major problem in California, I don't have space to explain the reason for this condition but I do sincerely suggest that, along with any other methods of control you may use, you establish the custom of using a good sow bug and cutworm bait, which contains the natural food of the sow bug, mixed with the killing ingredient. This bait can be scattered frequently in the areas where sow bugs abound, and watering and irrigation will gradually carry it down through the soil. Thus it continues to attract sow bugs deep underground. They go after the food and consume the bait automatically eat the poison and die. You may not see dead sow bugs lying over the surface of the soil but the bait is nevertheless constantly working to eliminate them. It is what I think of as a perpetual control and one which requires very little labor.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE (See Page 42)

White roses, such as White Knight, help brighten gardens where foliage plants have been used excessively.

months as the fuchsia. This is certainly one of California's most popular oranamentals. New varieties are constantly being introduced. Many of them are in pure white shades while other colors such as red, pink and violet. Fuchsias are known as shade-loving plants, but it is surprising how much sun they will take. They prefer a humid atmosphere, and this can be obtained, in part, by showering them every so often with a spray of cold water.

HOW TO Build a Screen of Bamboo Panels

I. THIS ATTRACTIVE SCREEN consists of a simple frame with ordinary bamboo plant stakes inserted into it.

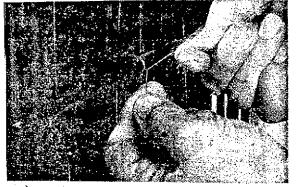

2.-START WITH 8-FOOT POSTS. Attach 2x4 rails before setting posts in concrete. After concrete sets, insert the canes and lash them together. The green, pencil-thick canes are available in 1,000-unit bundles at florist supply houses.

3. TOENAIL INTERIOR rails, 94 inches long, to posts, in one inch dadoes. Add 2x4 cap rail after you set the posts. Spacing between rails should be one-fourth inch more than length of the canes.

4. CANES RIDE in channels made by quarter-round molding. Half fill channel with calking compound and snap the canes into place. Alternate ends — one big end, one small — to compensate for size differences.

5. WHEN THE CHANNEL IS FULL, canes will be uneven. To correct, sandwich the canes between three rows of horizontal stakes. Cinch with wire.

Caricature by Milt Reppert KEN McCONNELL Children Are Fascinated

IRST the waitresses were amazed. Then the cooks came out to take a look. Finally even the dishwashers had to venture out to the main dining room and see what was going on.

It happened at Ken's Pan-cake Parade, 3918 Long Beach Blvd. Usually one batch of Ken's large pancakes is enough for the average appetite. But on this particular day the Pancake Parade was visited by a 17-year-old sixfooter with a Paul Bunyan appetite. First he ate a large cheese omelet. Then he had three large Manhattan pancakes loaded with syrup and a huge blob of butter. Next he consumed a king-sized pecan waffle.

In between courses he drank glass after glass of milk. Still hungry after all that, he ordered one of Ken's spicy apple pancakes—a tre-mendous disc only slightly smaller than a Cadillac hubcap. When he bravely fin-ished the last mouthful, he had his family, the waitresses, cooks and dishwashers in hys-

OWNED by young restaurateur Ken McConnell, the Pancake Parade is a strikingly beautiful restaurant dedicated to an astonishing array of pancakes which are served daily from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Unusual in flavor and lightness, the pancakes range in style from strawberry, blueberry, buckwheat, buttermilk, potato, coconut, cottage cheese and chocolate to German, French, Swedish, Ha-waiian and African banana. Prices start at 55 cents.

Also on the menu are ham and eggs, fruit juices, special children's orders and "pigs in blankets" (sausages wrapped in pancakes).

The children are particu-larly fascinated by the pancake varieties, ordering different kinds on each visit. Manager Mary Bower overheard one 7-year-old lad comment as he rubbed his tummy happily: "Boy, this is the best meal I've had in 10 years!" -TEDD THOMEY

It's Spring--Naturally!

By MARY LOU ZEHMS

Easter . . . spring hats . . . new dresses . . . coordinated accessories . . . as Benjamin Franklin said, "One new thing calls for 10 more." Since Easter is early this year (March 29), we're giving you your own semi-annual fashion edition today so your choice of a bonnet, suit or dress for the Easter parade will be just to your liking.

All the merchandise pictured is available in Long Beach specialty shops or department stores. Models, whose names are listed under the pictures, are from The Wilma Hastings Finishing and Fashion Modeling School.

In this section we are giving you final proof that fashion really is back to normal. The natural line is refreshing and as welcome as a spring breeze. Gone are the sacks, chemises, trapezes and all silhouette exaggerations.

SKIRTS ARE longer than last season. At least they cover the kneecap, usually with a couple of inches to spare. American and European fashion houses seldom have been so united and single-minded about a new style. The season is under way with small belted waistlines and a natural silhouette. We believe the trend is firmly set.

What spring styles may lack in originality, they make up in figure flattery. Clothes are designed for all figures. Dresses and suits minimize the waistline and soften the bust and hipline.

Colors are varied — every woman can find her favorite. In addition to the old standbys of navy, grey, beige, white and black in solid colors, there are lots of prints, plaids, polka-dots and checks.

Suits have slender, carefully shaped skirts, brief, easy jackets and skirt belts at the normal waistline. Most popular full-skirted fashion is the classic shirtwaist dress, the all-American favorite, which is shown in sheer fabrics for late-day wear, as well as in light wools and cottons for daytime occasions.

COATS ARE loose and enveloping, easy to slip on over suits or full-skirted dresses.

There's a wider, trimmer look to shoulders, though no return to the padded football shoulders of World War. II.

Belts, sashes and cummerbunds are much in evidence on costumes for all occasions. Wide, contoured leather belts are back with a bang. The dress and jacket cos-

The dress-and-jacket costume again is a favorite, with the jacket short and unfitted as a rule, the dress slender and belted at the normal waistline.

It's a season when women can go shopping without fear, and be sure of finding the kind of clothes that won't cause hysteria among the onlookers.

Jacqueline Wood, Long Beach fashion artist, designed our attractive cover for this section knowing full well that "in the spring a young woman's fancy turns to fashion." And we might add, any woman—young or near-young!

DAYS WARM, AND EVENINGS soft as velvet call for resort and after-5 wear; this sheath, for instance of linen-like white, its blue satin bow gently elevating the waistline. Above, the bodice is jeweled with medallion appliques, sparkling like flowers, dewtouched. At Vinson's Downtown, 233 E. Ocean Blvd., or Bixby Knolls, 4500 Atlantic Ave.

THIS IS THE NEWEST style stole for spring 1959 . . . and, of course, it's Homo Azurenl (Emba) mink. The individual furs are tiered in graceful rows to bring out the symmetry of the design. From Frank Hill & Son Furs, 3316 E. Broadway. Virginia Moses models.

Shoes Say Spring in Colors

In two showings at the Waldorf Astoria, New York, recently, the Fifth Avenue Association made their first presentation of the "Best in American Design" as selected by a committee of distinguished authorities from leading fashion magazines and celebrated Fifth Avenue stores.

Patterned along the splendid lines of the Paris openings, this delightful assemblage of dresses, coats, suits and their accompanying accessories forecast trends for a new spring season.

A distinguished group of the new shoe fashions presented at the Fifth Avenue openings are now being shown at shoe salons across big bold beautiful controversy in shoe fashion this spring! Color is the cause ... and here's the opposition, bright colors versus

On the side of the bright, spring's rainbow of shoes includes sun orange and yellow, mad green, tur-quoisc, lle de France bluc. The pale colors are interesting for their misted, lightened tones. They include pinky reds like geranium, budding yellowedgreens, and so new for a shoe . . . lilac, in a shy young version that is definitely Spring.

The foremost representative of the pale shoe grouping . . . off-white . . . has an exciting dignity so tremendous that it can oppose all the bright shades by itself. Just a shade creamier than white it adds the smart costume touch to your wardrobe when supplemented by creamy hosiery and gloves.

BLACK patent becomes just the relief needed to allow you to enjoy color to the utmost in dress, suit or coat; arriving on the scene earlier than ever before and lingering longer, in some localities never leaving it at all, crisply detailed black patent can be counted on by every fashionable woman.

With so much emphasis on color, the lines of a shoe become more important . . . they'rc sleek, simplified so as not to appear gaudy and overdone.

DE DE JOHNSON fashions pure silk candy stripes into a classic slim shirt dress and adds touches of white linen for crispness. Available in aqua or lemon with white at Buffums' Broadway and Pine Ave.

Shirtwaist Dress in Favor

Any girl who wants to be safe and sure this spring and summer can settle for a shirtwaist dress.

The all-American favorite now is spring's top fashion hit on both sides of the Atlantic, sharing honors in Paris with the classic suit.

In California and New York collections, shirtwaist dresses stole the show during recent spring openings. And here was one instance where Paris followed suit, with practically every member of the haute conture showing some version of the shirt dress.

THIS IS ONE of those fashions that never go out of style. Even at the height of the chemise rage, women who balked at the sack silhouette turned to the classic shirt-

YOU'LL BE SEEING this perennial silhouette this year in every fabric, from ging-ham to chiffon, with various treatments of collar and sleeves. Sometimes a wide cummerbund minimizes the waistline. Sometimes a contrasting contoured belt of leather is used. On some versions there's a crisp dickey front, on others the collar is rounded and sports a bow tie.

In any version, the shirt-waist dress once more is the backbone of the knowing woman's wardrobe.

Hats Taller and Colorful

Real brims, tall crowns and brilliant color give this spring's hat brand new dimensions.

The over-all effect is one of much more hat. Turbans, bretons, rollers, cone shapes and even sailors show the new look of height. They also demonstrate a new femininity. This comes partly from the soft straws and silks used for the hats and partly from the fact that even the ordinarily severe sailor has been softened by addition of trimming.

NOT ALL of the brims are wide, of course. Some are only an inch deep. But they're there. In the true profile hat, they shadow the eyes mysteriously, lending the look made famous by Crawford, Garbo and Dietrich.

Relaxed Line for Leisure

The relaxed and easy look of all other fashions is seen in leisure fashions for resort wear, too. Swimsuils, separates and shorts all take on this gently-fitted line.

The result is that people with figure problems really get a break. The dressmaker suit with pleated skirt takes care of hip problems and gracefully disguises bulges. Longer shorts, perhaps the Bermuda length, conceal poor thighs. And even the muchloved knit swimsult is not as revealing "as" it has "been in other seasons.

SINCE MOST girls who take a winter vacation in the tropics expect to wear their resort clothes next summer, they can be assured that the silhouette will prevail for summer, too. What's good in January will also be good in June.

Colors run to the pinks, lilacs and blues, with some red. But this year, the red has a pink rather than an orange cast. There are also splashes of "yellow," blue green " and avocado.

Drama for Formals

A whole world of dazzling flower prints bursts forth to lend drama to evening dresses for spring.

Many of these are warpprinted silk taffetas so crisp and rustly that they billow out without need of help from a petticoat. The flowers depicted on them bloom big, bold and beautiful in a melange of colors that never blossomed in any garden.

The Empire line is fully represented for evening. Often, the high-waisted evening gown is teamed with matching coat. The evening coat has, in fact, come back into favor for spring wear.

THE HIGH waistline appears above very full skirts for evening. And for cocktails and dinner, the shirtwaist dress in sheer fabrics gets new treatment: the Empire line above a wide skirt,

Special mention should go to pretty chiffon dresses molded closely to the torso from neckline to below the waist where they break into a series of fluttering flounces.

Even chiffons take to prints this spring as well as to vivid solid colors. Lace and silk organdy are used for the traditionally formal and floating ball gowns.

Polka dot and coin dot chiffons appear in several collections; brown-and-white is a favorite color combination for these. Emerald green is used for some paisley-printed chiffons but the misty greens, blues and violets are favored, too, HARVEY BERIN moulds this beautiful dinner sheath of imported Chantilly lace over silk satin, gathers the skirt low at the back for grace and elegance, adds a satin bow for emphasis. Shown at Schick's, 7th St. and Pine Ave.

Pay Attention to Your Hands

One of the first things others notice about you are your hands. Beautifully cared for, well-groomed hands make a lasting and lovely impression. Rough, chapped, red-looking hands can belie your otherwise perfect grooming and very often show up as that first tell-tale sign of years.

Take a minute and look at your hands. Be really critical!

If they have begun to lose their youthful appearance, now is the time to start smoothing and glamorizing them with hand cream.

The clue to looking welldressed lies in one word; simplicity. If you like color, wear it. But wear it subtly. Don't mix colors unless you've a ## Newer Patents Won't Crack!

Black patent leather-always a thing of beauty-is now a joy forever, because now it's non-crackable. The lustrous patent leathers are the result of a new tanning process developed after many years of research. Easy to work with, the supple patents were shown in a representa-tive selection of new spring shoe and accessory styles, now available at stores.

EXTENSIVE testing showed that the new patent leather far outwears conventional patent. It withstands extreme hot and cold, has great elacticity, and retains its original brilliance indefinitely.

Among the new fashions in crackless patent leather are: women's dress shoes for afternoon and evening wear; lit-tle girls' shoes modeled on grown-up high fashion lines, with tapered toes and sophis-ticated T-straps; boys' dress shoes for parties and religious ceremonies, such as first com-munion; men's formal shoes; afternoon and early evening handbags in new oblong and flat square shapes; glossy wide belts that accentuate the highly-waisted empire

LAVENDER bubble, polka-dotted with white is as springlike as wisteria delicately blossoming. A squared bow marks the front waistline, the neck is gently rounded. This version in silk at Wonder Shops, 221 Pine Ave., is worn by Russlyn Hernandez.

Evening Shoes Go Exotic

Evening shoes go exotic this season. Look for lots of beads, sequins and sparkles. One manufacturer shows a red satin pump with a high vamp, resembling a boot, which is cut out and traced with sequins. Beaded flowers decorate toes, and large rhinestones sparkle everywhere. Daytime shoes have a dressy look, and some are fined with gold kid. ## Go Now-but Travel Light

This is the year when everybody is going places. This is the dawn of the era of jet travel, when Suzy Secretary can take a jaunt to Europe on her two-weeks-withpay and have plenty of time to see the sights.

New fast schedules and economy fares put the whole world within reach of the travel-happy vacationer. But when you go by plane you have to travel light. There's no room for half a dozen trunks, such as Grandma used to take aboard ship when she started out for her grand tour. One bag and an overnight case is about the limit for today's air traveler.

THE SEASONED traveler goes in for a simple, versatile wardrobe, all planned to be worn with one set of accessories. Extra shoes and handbags can use up a weight allotment. She wears a suit which can be dressed up or down by a change of blouse, scarf and jewelry. She wears a travel coat which will serve ali purposes. In her luggage she packs light-weight wash-and-wear separates, nylon lingerie and stockings, plenty of scarfs, packable hats and jewelry to vary the look

Clean Comb, Brush

A shampoo does little good if you continue to use a dirty comb and brush. As part of a home shampoo routine, clean combs and brushes thoroughly before washing your hair. Also, change your pillowcase and keep your headscarves clean. This simple cleanliness trick actually can mean more time between shampoos.

The travel coat may very well be leather, with two zip-in linings to convert it from sports coat to evening coat as fast as you can zip a zipper.

WITH THIS easy to wear suit and its look of ex-pensive textured silk, Rosenblum scores again. Lightweight and wrinkleresistant, narrow skirt, new hip-bone length jacket create a relaxed, slimming line. Available at Desmond's, Broadway at Locust Ave.

HIGH-BELTED tunic jacket over black linen sheath in a walking ensemble for the taller girl by Martin Beren. Shown at Taller Girl, 350 American Ave.

Suits Spark Jewelry Trend

Suits, with their shortened sleeves, have sparked some new jewelry looks, and the big, beautiful, bulky bracelet, often featuring stones or gems to blend with the costume, is a top favorite worn with short, short gloves.

And flowers-in every size. shape, variety and form that nature or jewelry designers could devise—bloom all over the fashion scene in one of the most frankly beautiful and charming jewelry notes of the season. Everything from enameling to beading creates a real-life effect. Flower shapes are carved of ivory or jade, shaped of gold or silver, set with stones or gems, to give a beautiful, glorious, colorful sparkle to the softly. feminine new clothes.

Black, White Old Favorites

Black stands for wisdom, mystery and magic. It symbolizes dignity (judges' robes)... and extravagance (black automobiles are hardest to keep clean). Worn full-strength it makes some women feel secure, others feel bleak.

CALIFORNIA conturier Werle's wonderful travel-suit in English silk and wool tweed, with the fashion story at the back is exclusive at The Parisienne, 539 E. Ocean Blvd. The swaggle coat swings deep_and full in back and high in front with a touch of white Irish linen at collar. Skirt is slim and straight.

TO PAMPER the duchess in your soul, Lilli Ann designed this white spring suit of wool crepe, regally trimmed with white fox. The fitted jacket has draped cape effect, is worn over sheath slim skirt. Columbia, Pacific Ave. at 1st St., shows it with a Sonni hat of natural bali straw; a bonnel enhanced with huge silk roses.

Kiddy Shoes Are Slimmer

Little footprints make big impressions in shoe fashions for 1959! Slimness in children's shoes is the keynote to new fashion along with lighter construction and greater flexibility made possible by the new lighter, more supple leathers. Although the shoes are much slimmer than in past seasons, they have been kept in line with the natural contour of the little foot to assure comfort and good fit.

COLOR in little girls' apparel and the raised waistline silhouette are reflected in shoes designed to complete the new fashion look. The little shell pump in a wide range of leather colors in patent, smooth and brushed surfaces takes on a higher fashion look with the use of low little T-straps, slightly built-up front trims, bib effects and delicate cutouts at the vamp.

Victorian Gals' Hairdos False

If you've ever wondered how Victorian belles achieved those impossible-looking hairdos, the truth is that they weren't any handier with hair styles than anyone else. They used false hair in great quantity. This, in turn, was hard on their own hair. Magazines for ladies in the 1860's were filled with "receipts" for curing baldness.

Color Vital for Hosiery

The dominance of primitive colors in the spring and summer fashion spectrum emphasizes more than ever the importance of sheer scamless color excitement on the legs as the key fashion accessory.

importance of sheer seamless color excitement on the legs as the key fashion accessory. Texture emphasis in new custume fabrics also high lights the importance of seamless simplicity to achieve harmonious effect.

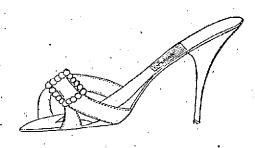

NEW SHOE fashions, a crescendo of color, also underscore the importance of seamless stockings in the spring and summer fashion picture. Intricate straps and cutout vamps effects call for legs sheathed in sheer seamless color to achieve their fashionable effect. Imaginative use of contrasting textures and colors in new footwear designs also emphasize the importance of seamless simplicity.

Pins, Pins, Pins— and Big Sleeves!

Fashion's attention has wandered to sleeves this season, and this above board emphasis has kept pins of all kinds squarely in the spot-light. Big, bold beauties are worn half hidden under suit collars; they are worn perched on the bigger sleeves themselves to call attention to the new line; they are spotted at necklines, under the bosom, worn in pairs or separately.

The newest trend is toward pairs of smaller pins, either in classical or whimsical or abstract motifs. These pretty pairs are worn in many ways and places, chief among them on the simple collars of the new shirtwaist dresses to give a charmingly "different" look to this old fashion favorite.

Coats High-Waisted In Paris,

The look of coats this spring is predominantly a high-waisted one. Your new coat will be short (some stop just below the knee) and will have an enormous collar, a flat, neat one or none at all.

The ways in which the modified high waistline is handled are many. Sometimes it's gently indicated by a drawstring. It may have a wide belt run through loops of the fabric. Or it may be simply seaming which artfully places the waistline at the high mark.

THIS LIFTED waistline stands away from the figure rather than molding to it. Even belts are handled so that they encircle the waistline without indenting it.

Too, It's Fabrics!

Paris fashions for late day and evening range from gowns with long, lithe lines to bouffant silhouettes. Michel Goma shows a short, very young party dress with molded budice and puffed skirt in the new ottoman of "Dacron" polyester fiber and cotton, with beige for the top and blue for the skirt.

At Jean Patou, a willowslim evening gown is striking in black-and-white polka-dot twill of "Taslan" textured yarn of Du Pont nylon and silk, with an over-sized black patent belt marking the natural waistline.

Jacques Heim's evening dress with a straight shaft of skirt in full bodied crope of textured nylon has a fullsleeved gauzy black organdy top.

AT DIOR, nylon tulle is used in evening fashions of fabulous beauty. One ball gown of white tulle scattered all over with rhinestones has a long full skirt and bloused bodice, high-waisted in front and dipping to the normal waistline in back. Another gown of great elegance is made in beige tulle with gold beads and exquisite gold embroidery.

In debutante mood is Lanvin-Castillo's beguilling dance decoiletage and wide skirt made of a dozen layers of nylon tulle.

Pick Up Spirits

Nothing to pick up the spirits on a rainy spring day like an umbrella that's a flash of color. Try one in turquoise with a gold handle. Or a spring flower print in vivid shades on a white background.

Try Good Tonic

A good hair tonic and scalp massage done regularly will add to the health of your hair. Of course, this assures that you are getting at least eight hours' sleep each night and cating a healthful diet. Use a tonic with a low alcoholic content because it is less drying.

Keep Up Routine

Maturity doesn't mean a woman stops a beauty routine. Each year it is more important that she have a coiffure that is becoming, uses special creams to keep her complexion clear and soft and has enough exercise to keep her figure as trim as possible.

BASICALLY SPEAKING

Here's proof positive that the only thing a charming woman needs to buy for her new spring wardrobe is an Easter bonnet, even if she doesn't have another single thing to wear, PROVIDED she's clever enough to be younger than her first birthday. For all others spring means a shopping list which contains, in addition to hat, dress, suit, gloves and every other lovely new thing she can find room for in her budget! Photo by courtesy of Ben Balkema, Parisienne—who has many charming customers but none so clever as the one pictured!

EYELET EMBROIDERY details a sheer cotton one-piece dress from D.J.'s of 505 E. Ocean Blvd. A simulated cropped jacket is loosely fitted above a wide leather belt. Available in coffee and white or powder blue and white.

Clear Skin Beauty Boon

Whatever the weather at Easter, a new hat is a must, and nothing is prettier or more springlike than those in white - crisp ribbon, shiny straw or masses of tiny flowers. This top note of white is a wonderfully becoming accent to any oulfit-that is, as long as there is an equally fresh, smooth complexion to go with it. Teenage and even older girls with oily skin conditions now find it possible to go in for this sparkling fashion, because, thanks to a new product, they can now conceal and banish blemishes and blackheads quickly and simply.

As it is flesh-tinted, it provides an even, natural looking film which hides the disturbed area while getting to work to soothe and clear it up. The formula contains the same medications prescribed by top skin specialists for the treatment of pimples and acne, combined in an oil-absorbing base, and providing a scientific preparation that is ideal both medically and cosmetically.

All Colors Have Rules

Color is one of fashion's most important subjects. Every color has its own rules—often better for the breaking—and its own meanings. For instance, red. It means stop. This notorious beauty was worn by brides in the 15th and 16th Centuries. It can be sophisticated, or as touching as an unexpected Valentine.

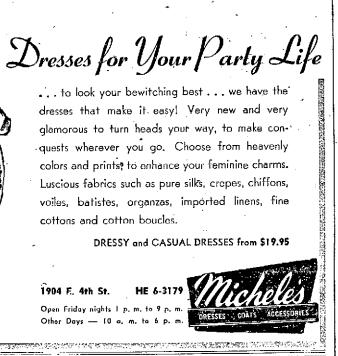

It means "siren" from fire truck to Sadie Thompson yet it was popular among the Puritans. Robert Burns "luve" was "like a red, red rose." People who like red are impulsive. And red shoes are said, by old wives, to run the fastest.

Rule to break: "Red is extravagant because you get tired of bright colors." Nonsense! A beautiful bright red dress can keep you happy for years. FORMULA: take a slim tachable pique blouse with op with short cropped jack FASHION FORMULA: take a slim, high-waisted skirt; add detachable pique blouse with tailored bow, very large; top with short cropped jacket bound with black braid. Result: Montego original in silk cotton tweed. See it at Greta's, 5012 E. 2nd St.

FLIRTATIOUS as an ivory fan is this sun dress worn by Bonita Long. Of frosty pink eyelet trim it is a Jr. Flair by Sportlane, shown by Gladys Fowler, 2110 Bell-flower Blvd. The bodice is pleated bewitchingly at the neckline; the skirt swings wide from unpressed pleats; slimmest of straps trace the shoulders.

Gov. LeRoy Collins of Florida writes an article for Parade on a controversial national issue

They can't forget this day

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Just five years ago—at 2:32 p.m. on March 1, 1954—three men and a woman grimly stood up in the visitors' gallery of the House of Representatives. As the woman shricked in Spanish, the three men whipped out guns and sent nearly two dozen bullets whistling at the congressmen massed on the floor below. In quick succession the five legislators you see above crumpled in their chairs, badly wounded.

The four attackers, fanatic Puerto Rican nationalists, were quickly seized by guards. With gunsmoke still hanging over the husbed House, the wounded congressmen were rushed to hospitals. They were: Alvin Bentley (R., Mich.): George Fallon (D., Md.); Ben Franklin Jensen (R., Iowa); Clifford Davis (D., Tenn.), and Kenneth Roberts (D., Ala.).

Today, recovered from their wounds, the five make up one of the most exclusive "clubs" in Washington, for they are the only men alive who can boast of having been shot down in Congress. (Plainclothes guards, five instead of the one on duty at the time of the shooting, make sure there'll be no more members of the club.) Each March 1, they try to get together to swap gags and "anniversary cards."

Their wounds apparently did them no harm at the polls. Though many congressmen have come and gone since, the five have each campaigned for re-election three times without a defeat. Their Puerto Rican attackers were less fortunate; they are now serving prison terms ranging from 16 to 75 years.

The congressmen feel no bitterness toward them. In fact, Representative Bentley, who almost died from his wounds, recently took a vacation—in Puerto Rico.

MY FRIEND, THE PRINCE

A classmate of Akihito, heir to Japan's throne, gives an exclusive report of the royal romance

by ROBERT K. TOGASAKI

For the first time in his 25 years, Crown Prince Akihito is about to have someone with whom he can share his life completely. She is his beautiful fiancee, Miss Michiko Shoda, whose heart and hand in marriage the Prince won through patient and persistent effort.

Until his betrothal last November, the Prince was the loneliest of men. In childhood, he was taken from the Imperial Family and reared separately. Only on week-ends and holidays did he see his parents, four sisters and younger brother.

I first met the Crown Prince when we attended junior high school together in suburban Tokyo. He often seemed retiring and shy. Since his engagement, he has become gayer and more at ease in public and in private. On a recent trip to Nikko, his friends noticed the spontaneity of his response to the welcoming crowd. He seemed to be expressing his love for his people as never before.

Now that he is engaged, the Prince has taken to expounding on the essentials of courtship to those of his friends who used to advise him on boy-girl relationships. "You see, there is nothing above sincerity, expressed personally and directly," the beaming Prince commented, on the evening of his formal betrothal.

"This is basically a problem between two individuals, to be decided personally and mutually."

He went on to tell us how he met Miss Shoda two summers ago and how he later initiated her selection as the candidate to be his bride. He emphasized, however, that he received the full support of the Ministry of Imperial Household. "Fortunately, I managed to cultivate enough personal contact with her to be able to telephone her personally and directly," said the Prince.

The life Miss Shoda chose as his partner is far more demanding than that of an ordinary citizen, and so she hesitated until the Prince's personal appeal made her decide. She confided to a friend, "Love that moves us all, I think I am facing it now."

Wide Range of Interests

The Prince seldom discussed with his friends the type of girl he wanted to marry. But years ago, when no particular young lady was under consideration, he had definite thoughts on the subject. "At that time I hoped for someone outside the Imperial Family and the high-ranking nobility," he remarked the other day, "since I felt my future companion should have an appreciation of the hardships and efforts of my people. Then I hoped for capability, but not merely academic excellence. I hoped for good adaptability and sociability. I also wished her to have a wide range of interests as well as an active interest in sports, preferably tennis.

"Very fortunately, the hopes and wishes I entertained then have been fully realized." The Prince's cherished dream of a close-knit family life is reflected in the design of the new residence being built for him. It has ample accommodation for children.

Crown Prince Akihito is 5'5" tall, with a wellproportioned build. He is an excellent rider, a fine swimmer and a good tennis player. After he left Gakushuin University he had few occasions to meet people informally except during the summers, which he spent in Karuizawa, a resort in central Japan. Here he drove his own car and went to parties at friends' homes. Here he met his future Princess.

One of his close tennis companions describes the Prince as an orthodox player who prefers a raily from the back court to net play. "But at the crucial point, he can count on a powerful forehand drive off his 15-ounce racket." Miss Shoda, on the other hand, "plays a steady, defensive game, returning every shot until the other side makes an error. She is a consistent and difficult opponent, and a very dependable partner."

We who know him are delighted that the Prince has found mutual trust and love. With the help of his Princess, he may be able to open a wider window he tween the world and the Japanese people.

U.S. teenagers

OHICAGO, H.L.

NE RECENT SUNDAY, 1,200 teenagers of the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs gathered in the Morrison Hotel here and took a long, hard look at tomorrow's world. Hours later, after sounding off on elaborate and extensive questionnaires, they had sketched that world—and their own attitudes toward it—in startling dimensions.

Their answers give insight into the baffling minds of teenagers everywhere. Among them:

Most expected to need a $9,000-ayear income to support a family "adequately"; more than one-third made the figure $10,000-plus.

As a life goal, "to really understand oneself" drew the most votes; "to serve God" ran second.

In a marriage partner, teenagers voted the most important quality "understanding." "Physical attraction" got a scant four votes.

In picking a job, teenagers said they would be guided first by challenge and interests, only afterward by security.

Almost all said they would accept reduced income for two to five years to marry the right person.

More than half expected to work their way through college.

Asked the way they would like to be remembered, teenagers voted first for "as an individualist"; second for "as a good guy." Four said waggishly that they hoped to be remembered for "the near-perfect crime."

Follow-up to 1957 Poil

The day-long Youth Opinion Survey was a follow-up to a similar poll taken in 1957 by the Metropolitan Chicago YMCA in cooperation with Sears, Roebuck & Co. The 1957 survey, taken to help the "Y" plan better service to U.S. youth, was so successful that teenagers asked for another that would help them build for the future.

Questions were asked in four broad areas: preparation for marriage and family life; preparation for college and family training; preparation for life work; development of a philosophy of life. Teenagers (some of whom ex-

Susan Backus, 17: "To me, the most important factors in being successful are getting along with people, training and personality. Work is a partnership. You work with people and for people. That's important."

Jim Riester, 17: "The most important goal in life is to serve Gad. Second is to be proficient in your career. It follows naturally: the better I am in whatever career I choose, the better I will be able to serve Gad."

Jennifer Sachs, 16: "A lot of kids say, "I want a comfortable life." I think this is awful. Security seems to be teenagers' main concern. But if teens are not idealistic, who will be? Who will crusade for what we need?"

Mary Kay O'Hara, 17: "Too many couples marry too quickly. I think you should go together at least a year, maybe two years. You should have time to know the other person—to build up understanding and loyally."

look at tomorrow

tended their answers for the photos above) were asked to sit in round-table discussion groups, jot down their reactions to each question. After discussion, they were asked to answer again. Changes sometimes were surprising.

Here's how Chicago's teenagers spoke for American youth:

Marriage and families: Most teenagers said couples should date one to two years before marriage, thought school and church the best places to meet a life partner. Dancing and double dating were mentioned as best dating practices; surprisingly, necking was more approved than "social drinking." Most popular number of children, "if money were no problem," was four; but 72 votes were cast for six or more.

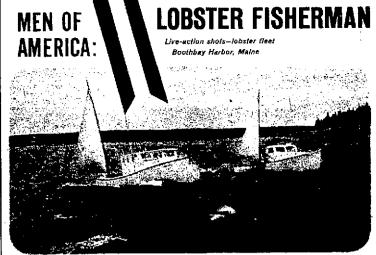

Financially, the teenager's rated "savings for security" as the most important budget item. Also drawing a heavy vote was "a living standard on a par with neighbors."

Education: Teenagers gave two major reasons for attending college: to increase their general knowledge and to develop personality. In third place came "to make more money." They listed ambition, study habits and personality as the most important factors in a successful college career.

Life work: In choosing a career, teenagers gave heavy weight to personality factors. "Getting along with people" was rated an important factor in job success, "friendly co-workers" a major reason for picking a job. Rated a minor consideration in job selection was "income possibilities"; "interests" and "aptitudes" ranked one-two.

A life philosophy: Most teenagers agreed they wanted a comfortable life, said they thought religion and education could lead them to the "good life." Aud, in a world where teenagers often are regarded with despair and distrust, they showed a strong streak of character when asked what they would sacrifice to do right on a mozal question.

They would give up anything, Chicago's teenagers said—social standing, money, job, even their lives—except their self-respect.

LEGALIZED GAMBLING

by GOV. LE ROY COLLINS

All across the country, states and cities, hard-pressed for new funds, have been wrestling with proposals to tap a controversial gold mine: a tax on gambling.

Recently, New York City has been investigating legalized off-track betting. Trial balloons have been sent up in Arizona, California, Louisiana, Pennsylvania and a number of other states and municipalities. There even has been serious talk of a national lottery to raise Federal funds.

A few months ago, the commissioners of Dade County, Fla., which includes Miami, gave preliminary approval to a scheme to license and tax gambling easinos. A howl of citizen protest went up from all over the state. One of the most prominent voices among the anti-gambling group was that of Gov. LeRoy Collins of Florida, who was clusen by his fellow governors recently to serve as chairman of the National Governors' Conference.

() Parade Publications, Inc., 1959

TALLAHASSEE, FLA.

IN THE YEARS 1935 through 1937, the people of Florida got a dose of moral poison they will not soon forget.

Times were bad then. The state was hard-pressed for money and looking desperately for ways to get it. The eyes of the governor of that day lit on the easy money of the slot machine.

In many of our 67 counties, slot machines were operating openly, if illegally. Why not, it was suggested, make them legal, license their operation and tap the jackpot?

The Legislature bit. What followed next shocked all Florida:

Gumblers and unsavory underworld characters infiltrated the state from all over the country. Crime rates jumped. Delinquency increased. Disrespect for law spread over our state in a waye. One could almost feel the moral strength of the state ebbing away.

In two years, Florida had had enough. And I am proud to have led the fight, as a member of the Legislature at the time, to outlaw the slots.

IS POISON

Not only were we able to repeal the law legalizing slot machines, but afterward, whenever slot machines reappeared, the public backed up a genuine crackdown on the illegal operations. Our people wanted every vestige of this poison obliterated.

Gambling, legal or illegal, spreads that kind of poison through a community. It is insidious. It kills more business than it generates. It encourages public corruption and undermines the faith of citizens in their officials. Worst of all, it saps moral strength and character.

Opening the doors of a community to gambling is like opening Pandora's box. You run the risk of releasing all manner of dangerous and uncontrollable influences.

Our state, I believe, has learned this lesson. How well it has been learned was illustrated recently when the question of legalized gambling again came up.

Former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey an honest man whom I admire very much—asked the Dade County Commission for permission to open a maximum of four gambling casinos. Each would be equipped with the full range of gambling tables and slot machines. And each would pay the county a basic license fee of $750,000 a year. Dempsey said he was ready to spend $2,000,000 on the first of the casinos.

The commission, by a vote of 3-2, gave preliminary approval to the proposal.

It was like a bomb. I was so shocked I asked, "What on earth have they been smoking down there?" Ministers, educators, newspapers, civic organizations rose up as one. Thousands of plain citizens wrote angry letters. Some of them came to my desk in Taliahassee. Here are samples:

"We want Miami to be a truly great city, one where we can raise our children and grandchildren proudly. We don't want any Monte Carlo here."

"Too many decent people sit back and don't make themselves heard. But the people of Dade County certainly hope we can concentrate on attractions better than gambling to bring people and revenue to the fair state of Florida."

SMASHED to pieces, illegal roulette wheels and dice tables from Miami's wide-open days end in county dump after crackdawn. Governor Collins pledges no revival of "sneak gambling."

> Most Floridians remember with no pride the illegal gambling that the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee exposed in Dade County before 1 became Governor, and that has not been tolerated since.

As the storm built up, the commission majority quickly retreated. A week after its first action, the commission voted unanimously to reject Mr. Dempsey's proposal.

The commission's original action, of course, had been patently illegal, since it would have conflicted with state anti-gambling laws. Both the Assistant Attorney General and I pointed this out.

The Miuni Herald warned in an editorial: "Nobody thinks this is just a local attempt; it was a trial balloon for a move to be made in the Legislature."

A similar campaign to repeal anti-gambling laws, the newspapers indicated, was in progress in other states.

I cannot tell any of our sister states how to run their affairs. But Florida, so long as I am Governor, will never permit itself to be turned into a vast gambling casino after the Las Vegas model. I have heard all the arguments in favor of licensed, legalized, supervised gambling. To me they are a sham and a delusion.

True, we do have some legalized gambling in Florida now. Our state licenses pari-mutuel betting at horse-racing tracks, dog racing tracks and jai-alai frontons."

As such operations go, I am sure our mutuels are clean. I am not crusading to abolish them. But I have said frankly, and I will say it again here, that Florida would be better off if it had no pari-mutuel betting.

The problem is that revenues from these operations have come to be an accepted part of our fiscal picture. Last year, revenues from pari-mutuels amounted to nearly $25,000,000. Under law, $11,000,000 of the money was divided equally among the 67 counties. Each received $170,671. In some of our small rural counties, this money covers a large part of the budget. It has been pledged to support bond issues for schools, hospitals and other public needs.

The supporters of legalized gambling might say that I am proving their case—that gambling revenues are a great lift to a state financially. While such revenues are helpful, actually they are only about 2.7 per cent of our total state income. But there is no way to measure the cost of legalized gambling.

The Metropolitan Miami safety director, Tom Kelly, for instance, tells me he has far more juvenile delinquency because of the influence of legalized gambling. He says it helps to create an attitude of irresponsibility on the part of the youngsters that is damaging. You can imagine what an extension of legalized gambling—to casinos and to slot machines —would do.

What are the principal arguments we hear raised in favor of legalized gambling? Let us examine them:

Gambling is "necessary" to lure tourists.

This was the argument we heard most recently in Florida. Our tourist industry suffered some temporary setbacks last winter. A few irresponsible and fainthearted citizens said the customers were being hured away from us to Havana by spinning roulette wheels and dice tables. To win them back, the argument ran, Florida needed roulette wheels and dice tables of its own. There were even whispers that lax law enforcement-what's called "sneak gambling"-would help.

Do gambling laws go against human nature?

Answers Collins: 'Shoddy rationalization'

I entertain no such notion. To suggest deliberately lax law enforcement is an insult. But even if gambling is "needed" to attract some customers, I say let other places have those customers. They bring more problems than prosperity. I have made it clear that any gamblers who might be leaving Cuba in the wake of the revolution there had better head for some place other than Florida.

Florida caters to the family vacationer. We want the kind of state where people like to live and work and play and raise their children under wholesome influences—the kind of state other families with children will want to visit. We want visitors to tell others back home that Florida is a place where the good in people, not the bad, is brought to the front. We just don't care for visitors who want to hang over craps tables. We prefer those who want to go swimming, fishing or picnicking or just plain want to take it easy in the sun.

If we should turn our state into a big gambling den, we would surely lose. We would find that decent family people—the kind who make up the bulk of our tourists, and of our residents—would be going somewhere else. We might gain a few gamblers' dollars but, in the long run, we would lose many more dollars from more worthwhile visitors.

People will gamble anyway, so why not control it and cash in on it?

This is a persuasive argument. Its premise is that anti-gambling laws are usually ineffective and tend to corrupt law enforcement. Anti-gambling laws, this argument runs, are counter to "human nature"; the urge to gamble is a normal motivation. Under state licensing laws, the argument continues, gambling can be controlled, corruption will end and the proceeds can be used for the benefit of the whole community.

While it may sound plausible, this is shouldy rationalization. It would be just about as sensible to argue that sex is a normal human emotion; that we always will have some illicit sex relations—so why not license prostitution and let the state reap benefits from it?

This is the same kind of reasoning that induced Florida to license slot machines in the 1930s. What we found then, to our disgust and shame, was that licensing an evil—condoning it and abetting it—brought far more injury than benefit. You just can't make a house cleaner by encouraging the people living in it to like dirt. That's never the solution.

Gambling revenues can be made to work for good.

In our state last year, $12,000,000 from parimutual revenues went to general revenue for the Old Age Fund, Another $366,481 went to the Scholarship Fund, and $204,449 went to the public schools. A third amount, of $378,286, went to charities of the race tracks' designations.

If that much money can be obtained from horses, dogs and jai-alai, think how much more could be put to work for the state's benefit if gambling casinos were similarly taxed. So goes the argument, and the prospect sounds alluring.

But the price is too high. The damage to our reputation, and to our morals, would be far-reaching. Florida has been a pacemaker in attracting industry that employs highly skilled, well-educated men and women who are a boon and an asset to any community.

One reason this kind of industry locates in Florida is that our state offers wholesome communities, where employes can be assured of good schools; good churches, good law enforcement. With gambling, and the irresponsible, unstable, even shady elements it attracts, this air of wholesomeness would be shattered.

Industry—an, important key to Florida's future—might take its payrolls elsewhere. And the income of industry is worth far more than a quick jackpot.

The state needs money, and other sources have been overtaxed.

Florida is suffering from some "growing pains." We ranked 27th in population among the states in 1940, by 1950 we had grown to 20th, and now we stand 12th. By 1970, we should rank eighth, with a population of more than 7,000,000. We have more needs all the time. Where is the money to come from?

In our state, as in others, this situation has led to serious suggestions that money be raised by a tax on legalized gambling. The reasoning is that this would be "easy money," not taken from "our own people."

I don't believe the people of Florida want this kind of "easy money." I think they'd rather pay higher taxes than resort to revenues from extended legalized gambling, although we are determined by efficient management to see our way through without additional taxes of any kind.

Some years back, our legislators thought up another scheme to help Florida "prosper and grow." This was to reduce to 90 days our residence requirement before filing for divorce. The idea was to let a nice, cozy three-month vacation in the winter qualify a spouse for suing to sever marital bonds. And it worked.

Even so, I asked the Legislature in its last session to take Florida out of this "quickie" divorce business, and it did, despite howls about the "business" we would lose to Reno.

What I said then about divorce I would like to apply now to gambling:

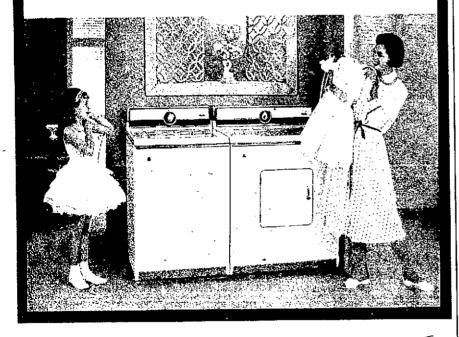

"What we lose in income, we shall gain in integrity."
And integrity—and the moral strength of a community—are irreplaceable treasures no amount of money can buy.

Meet Charlie Bossart, rocket wizard...

FATHER OF THE ATLAS

by LLOYD SHEARER Parade West Cuast correspondent

SAN DIEGO, GALIF.

Should an ENEMY inter-continental ballistic missile explode over one of our cities tomorrow morning, we could not launch a single ICBM from these shores in retaliation.

The Atlas, to date our only proven ICBM, designed to deliver a thermonuclear warhead 6,325 statute miles and more, is not yet operational.

Despite this, Karel J. Bossart is irrepressibly optimistic about our nation's progress and future in astronautics.

Who is Karel J. Bossart? He is a small, smiling, hazel-eyed, 54-year-old scientific genius with two titles. The official one is technical director of Convair Astronautics. The unofficial one is "father of the Atlas."

Is Russia Ready?

Bossart takes a favorable view of our position in the missile race "because, in my opinion, the Russians are not going to attack us."

"First," he asserts, "there is no conclusive evidence that they have fleets of ICBMs ready to launch. Second, even if they do, they're not going to fire them at us. They value human life too highly. They realize what our strategic bombers could do to their cities within a few hours.

"The people I worry most about," he continues, "are the Chinese. There are more than 600,000,000 Chinese. They're so numerous they don't value human life nearly as much as we or the Russians do. Given the proper nuclear equipment, it's conceivable they might go to war reconciled to losing 20 or even 30 per cent of their population. Fortunately China doesn't have the technology or the missile know-how at present, and I don't think the Russians are going to give it to them.

"This affords us time to work for peace through science, to explore man and his universe. Perhaps science can show man that he is not alone in the universe. Maybe through astronautics we can show how foolish it is for nations to stir up interest in the relative superiority of their space weapons rather than combine scientific forces for the betterment of mankind.

"Forget about the military applications of rockets for a minute," Bossart pleads, "and think of all the peaceful applications: shooting mail from coast to coast by rocket, manned travel to Mars, interplanetary communications, better weather forecasting, detailed aerial maps—the list is endless. And it may all make for a better, fuller life."

This rocket wizard is no impractical idealist. Rather the contrary, Bossatt is a realistic and practical scientist.

Forerunner of the Atlas

It was Charlie Bossart ("Everyone at Convair calls me Charlie") who insisted that actual test missiles be built to prove the faults and virtues of his theoretical calculations. It was Bossart who, carly in the cold war, predicted that the defense against manned aircraft with new radar developments would progress so rapidly that only missiles might get through to the enemy's homeland.

Thirteen years ago Charlie Bossart was the project engineer who led a talented group of 50 designers in developing the MX-774 Hirock research rocket, the forerunner of the Atlas.

With hold imagination and painstaking attention to detail, he and his group introduced three scientific innovations that have since become integral parts of the complex art of rocketry as we now know it:

1) The Bossart team introduced the first separable nose cone in rockets. (The Germans re-entered the complete rocket structure of their V-2s.)

2) The Bossart team made the fuel tanks part of the missile itself, thus achieving a tremendous weight-saving in rockets. (The Germans used separate internal tanks.)

3) The Bossart team also came up with the first swiveling of engines for directional control of rockets. (The Germans controlled the V-2 with rudderlike graphite vanes placed in the jet stream.)

If you don't know rockets, the above may read like gibberish to you. But take the word of the scientists who know: "Charlie Bossart is a practical, scientific peacemonger who knew the Atlas would work when so many others were ready to give up on it"... "If it weren't for Charlie Bossart we wouldn't have the Atlas today, and we'd be years and years behind the Russians"... "He was the guy who kept the Atlas project alive."

To look at Charlie Bossart, one would never take him for a brilliant dedicated scientist. He is modest, pleasant, tolerant, unassertive and so soft-hearted that, according to his wife, "He won't even discipline his children. He gets in on all the fun and none of the fights."

An Over-Disciplined Boy

One of the reasons Charlie Bossart refuses to discipline his three children (Marion, 15; Newell, 17; Karel Jr., 19) is that he himself was over-disciplined.

He was born in Antwerp, Belgium, the only son of school teachers. His parents, who tutored him at home largely in seientific subjects, saw to it that he entered the University of Brussels at 16. There, voing Charlie took a five-year course in mining engineering "because, if you wanted to get a job with the Belgian Government after graduation, you could only become a mining engineer or a civil engineer. They hired no other kinds. Anyway, in my last year I took some courses in aeronautical engineering, then applied for a fellowship to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The only trouble was that I didn't know English."

A revealing indication of Bossart's

scholarship was that he learned English in six weeks.

At MIT he took his master's degree in aeronautical engineering, specialized in stress analysis, spent his vacations on a motorcycle speeding from one coast to another, inspecting, "just for the fun of it," such diverse aircraft plants as Boeing in Seattle, Wash., Ryan in San Diego, Sikorsky in Long Island, N.Y.

From 1930 through 1940, Bossart went to work for Sikorsky at General Aviation, designed a tri-motor passenger plane in competition to the DC-1, worked on a one-man helicopter, built the S-43 amphibian, started the aircraft section of the Budd Company. He became thoroughly.

experienced in almost every branch of aeronautics.

In 1941, three years after his marriage to Cornelia Chase, a Baltimore social worker, Charlie Bossart came to California, and went to work for Vultee Aircraft, which later merged with Consolidated Aircraft at San Diego, eventually to become today's giant Convair.

The Go-Ahead Sign

Larly in 1946 the Air Force awarded Convair the first research and development contract in a program to develop a missile capable of carrying a warhead 5,000 miles. At that time the only longrange rocket in captivity was the 200-mile

German V-2. The Air Force wanted a study, primarily to point out the feasibility, or lack of it, of a supersonic missile that would carry a 5,000-pound payload.

To become project engineer on the MX-774, Charlie Bossart accepted a reduction in rank, gathered a coterie of devoted scientists around him, put on his thinking cap. "In the first few months," he says, "we came up with a whole set of fresh concepts about missiles. There were no precedents or traditions to hamper us. We brought new ideas to the project, and I suggested to the Air Force that we put these ideas into execution, that we actually build the hardware and test it."

In 1947 Defense Department economy cutbacks led to shelving of the ICBM development. Under Bossart's friendly but constant urging, however, Convair continued limited ICBM studies. During this period the rocket wizard was offered top jobs by rival aircraft companies but he refused to leave Convair.

"I was sure," he declares, "that eventually there would be a thermonuclear breakthrough resulting in smaller, more powerful warheads, and that the ballisticmissile program would come into its own."

Bossart proved himself an apt prophet.

In 1952-53, the Air Force assigned top priority to the ICBM project, soon placed it on a full "crash program."

Fabrication of the Atlas began in San Diego in 1955. One year later the first completed missiles, 75 feet long, 10 feet in diameter, were trucked across the country to Cape Canaveral, Fla. Testing began last summer. As of this writing, seven of 10 tests have proven successful, with the Atlas going its full distance of more than 6,000 miles in November and orbiting around the earth in December.

"A Regular Spaz"

A few days after an 8,500-pound Atlas went into orbit December 18, Charlie Bossart received this cable from his younger sister, marxied to a doctor in Bloemfontain, in Africa's Orange Free State: "Congratulations on your splendid achievement. Saw Atlas right above our heads."

According to Charlie Bossart's daughter Marion, "Daddy's reaction to the cable was typical. He just smiled and said softly, I knew all the time the Atlas would work.' My Daddy is a regular spaz. You don't know what a spaz is? Let me tell you. A spaz is a guy who's completely out of this world—but I mean, completely."

Uncertain bravado is the tack taken by Nomi when mother reprimands her for having pinched sister Jean, 6. Nomi started the Tracy Clinic correspondence course for deaf children when she was 2. The New York League for the Hard of Hearing gave free tests and advice.

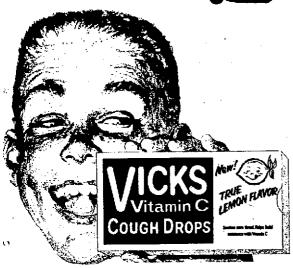

Soccer is played by Nomi (left) and Cory, lying on a cushion on the floor and kicking the ball with their feet. Since she attends the Lexington School for the Deaf in New York, Nomi is away from home from Monday through Friday.

Dissatisfied with one of the gifts received at her birthday party, Nomi expresses her emotion plainly. Until she learns to speak better, her relations with the hearing community often will be clouded by misunderstanding.

Bedtime is the storyteller's hour. At first Daddy had to lift his head from the book so Nomi could read his lips. Moreover, she was eager to start reading all by herself.

Remedy was devised by Nomi, who took the book and told the story to Daddy. Until she could read well, she acted out the story, or what she thought it meant.

Lively enactment of "Bugs Bunny's Birthday" enthrolls the father and brings the sandman to his daughter.

Rearing back and letting go does you

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

"The American people never carry an umbrella. They prepare to walk in eternal sunshine."

This quotation, from the late Alfred E. Smith, speaks volumes about the American temperament, sense of humor and the great ability that Americans have, perhaps more than any other people; to laugh good-naturedly at themselves and at others.

Indeed, experts agree there is something unique about the American sense of humor. A prominent New York psychiatrist, Dr. Edmund Bergler, has stated:

Foreigners coming to the U.S. would have to acknowledge that Americans "are amazing in their objection to any type of pompousness...They are always ready for a good laugh."

Luckily for Americans, nothing could be truer. Furthermore, whether or not you know it, that "good laugh" can do you a great deal of good—beyond just the sheer fun of laughing.

For laughing, the simple action of rearing back and letting go, is healthy for you from the standpoint of both your physical and emotional wellbeing. In short, laughter is therapeutic. Here's how:

1) It helps heart action. Studies at Fordham and other universities show j that the motion of the diaphragm during laughter sets in motion a physical chain of events.

One of the results is that the heart is stimulated slightly, causing a tiny increase in heart rate. Actually, this is good for you.

2) Digestion is benefited. Another research project shows that, when you enjoy a good occasional laugh at meal-time, gastric juices are stimulated to perform their functions more efficiently. The result: digestion is en-

3) At times laughter helps even high blood pressure cases. Almost everyone realizes that stress is a factor in aggravating high blood pressure. Remove the stress, and there's an excellent chance that blood pressure will drop.

One series of tests provides evidence that during and after laughter blood pressure decreases slightly. These studies and others also show that, when you laugh, blood circulation is stepped up.

This, in turn, means that organs like the liver and spleen receive an increased blood supply. Thus, they function on a slightly higher plane of efficiency.

good in many ways

4) Tension is released. Laughter, of course, relaxes you. It "unwinds" you. It makes you feel good all over.

Laughter serves as a release. In laughing, you "loosen up" (stout people shake all over, they're so loose), get rid of stored stress.

Thus, laughing has a restorative quality. Its positive effect on your muscles and central nerve system prepares you for future stress. In short, laughter prevents you from being as tight as a violin string all the time. This tension-releasing effect has been observed in 95 out of 100 persons.

5) You get rid of hostilities. Laughter is most important, perhaps, in the area of emotional well-being. After all, it's perfectly normal to feel hostile toward someone or something. Life is full of situations in which hostility is a natural component.

Laughter helps you get these hostilities off our chest. It helps you to establish a perspective, to set things right within your own psychological framework.

6) Laughing is good for your fantasy life. Experts will tell you that it is normal, too, for everyone, children and grown-ups, to exercise their imaginations in fantasy. Your ability to laugh at a fantasy joke, an unreal situation or even utter nonsense, is a yardstick of the over-all health of your fantasy life.

The bore, psychologists will tell you, who is boring to himself and to others, rarely gets "outside himself" long enough to permit himself a good belly laugh.

7) Laughter steps up your social life. Ever try to cultivate friendships in a dead-pan, bored fashion? No one accepts the grouch.

Laughter with friends is really a sign that you accept and appreciate them. Failure to enjoy things with them shows that you are not tuned in on their thinking, their sources

Consistent failure to laugh with friends indicates you really do not belong with them in a sustained social relationship.

Ever wonder why Americans do not like to be called "humorless" or "lacking a sense of humor"? Obviously, to most people, if you fail to have a good sense of humor, you fail to get along with people.

Asset on the Job

8) In your vocation, smiles and laughter work for you, too, lob counselors emphasize that, within reason, your ability to laugh can be a job asset.

The same reasons apply here as with social relationships. However, there are other factors involved. Your job may demand contact with a wide range of people every day. The "face" you present to them creates an impression not only of you but of the organization vou represent.

Again, the inevitable question arises: Who wants to do business with a sourpuss?

Through the ages, men have tried to analyze what makes people laugh. They have come to the conclusion that humor is boundless. Hardly anything in living is beyond laughter.

In addition, for hundreds of years man has tried to analyze laughter itself. Some authorities believe it to be instinctive-built right into the make-up of every newborn baby. That, the experts in this school say, is the reason babies start laughing and smiling at very early ages.

Other authorities believe that laughter is a part of lifelong conditioning. They say we laugh at some things and not at others because of previous experience or present perception. They point out, too, that the reasons for laughter often are based deep in the unconscious.

Thus, many people laugh and later cannot explain why they laughed.

Stephen Leacock, the great humorist, once stated his theory this way:

"Our laughter originated, it would seem. long before our speech as a sort of natural physical expression, or outburst, of one's feeling suddenly victorious. It was a primitive shout of triumph.

"The savage who cracked his enemy over the head with a tomahawk and shouted, 'Ha, ha,' was the first humorist . . . '

You may or may not agree with that idea. Far more important, though, is that you realize the real value of laughter in almost every walk of life.

No matter how it all started, you help yourself by doing it when the occasion arises.

Resemblance of Dina Merrill (above) to Grace Kelly is often noted.

Actress Dina Merrill's problem...

She has too much

Dina Merrill has a problem. Most people in the world wish they were similarly afflicted. Dina's problem: too much

This blond willowy actress, whose real name is Nedenia Hutton Rumbough, is the daughter of Mrs. Merriweather Post Close Hutton Davies May. Mrs. May is worth an estimated $100,000,000, thanks to her father C. W. Post, the cereal king who helped found giant General Foods.

Dina's father is multimillionaire Edward F. Hutton, whose brokerage offices are scattered all over the country. The fantastically wealthy and bedeviled Barbara Hutton is a cousin. Her husband is Stanley Rumbough Jr., heir to the Colgate fortune and in his own right president, of the American Totalisator Company, which manufactures the pari-mutual betting machines used at race tracks, the Metal Container Corporation as well as a few other companies.

In a word, when it comes to-money, background and social position, Dina Merrill is loaded.

She also happens to be loaded with classical, Nordic, patrician beauty, and a genuine acting talent sharpened by years of training with Stella Adler and Uta Hagen and by years of experience in summer stock and television.

money

Comedian Jerry Lewis, who recently finished starring with her in a laugh-riot, Don't Give Up the Ship, told Dina a few weeks ago, "A kid with your looks and dough's got no right to be talented, too."

Cary Grant, a restrainedly shrewd judge of performers, thinks Dina is so promising that he's signed her for the female lead in his forthcoming Operation Petticoat.

The question facing Dina Merrill is whether the moviegoing public will accept her despite the background and wealth into which she was born and married. Traditionally, most movie stars originate on the poor side of the tracks. They represent the personification of Cinderella and Horatio Alger. They arouse empathy in moviegoers who like to daydream that they, too, can become screen stars through one overnight lucky break. Generally, film fans seem to resent moneyed socialites who curry stardom.

Help or Hindrance

Dina is aware of this, which is why years ago she took the name Dina Merrill (a contraction of two first names, her own and a brother-in-law's). "I didn't want to trade on the Hutton name," she explains. "I've always wanted to make it on my own and, quite frankly, I don't know whether my background's been a help or a hindrance—probably some of both.

"It is true, however," she concedes, "that many people in the business resent the accident of heritage. Usually they're standoffish and reserved, waiting to see if I'm going to bark or bite. Once I prove myself a regular fellow, they couldn't be nicer. But I've always got to prove myself."

Dina started proving herself as an actress at the age of 8, when she played an Indian brave in a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta at Greenvale School, in New York City. After that, she remembers, "I was always on." She studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, worked steadily in summer stock, played New York's subway circuit (Brooklyn and the Bronx), toured the Pacific with Moss Hart's USO production of The Man Who Came to Dinner, finally wound up on the Broadway stage in a John Van Druten play. The Mermaid's Singing.

It was then that she fell in love with and married Stanley Rumbough Jr., diverting her intense energies to marriage and motherhood. The Rumboughs have three children: Stanley, 11: David, 9, and Nina, 6.

Following the birth of her daughter, Dina renewed her acting and modeling career. Actor Dick Powell talked her into doing a 10-minute spot with him on TV.

Dina, portraying a Wave, chats with Jerry Lewis on set of Don't Give Up the Ship.

She posed for many magazine covers, Advertising agencies requested her for TV beauty commercials.

Gradually she found herself back in the world of show business.

Dick Powell asked her to come out to Hollywood for more TV. Dina sought her husband's permission. An understanding man, Rumbough agreed with her plans. "You ought to do the very most you're capable of."

Money No Object

In TV up to her pretty neck, Dina Merrill was spotted by actress Katharine Hepburn, who promptly asked 20th Century-Fox to sign her for Desk Set. This finished, Fox assigned Dina the lead in A Nice Little Bank That Should Be Robbed. Soon it was gossiped all over the movie colony that Dina Merrill "is a girl who can out-Kelly Grace Kelly. She's got the same kind of cool, poised, artistocratic, ladylike glamor."

Whether this glamor will pay off in stardom for Dina Merrill — which is what she wants, because she certainly doesn't need the money — no one can accurately predict at this point.

One school of thought in Hollywood holds that "the public never will elevate a millionairess to the ranks of stardom." Press agents of this school advise Dina to say nothing about her background, her constant plane commutations between New York and Hollywood, the vaunted position her husband occupies in corporate and financial centers. They advise her to hold back on the truth.

Another school of opinion, represented by the publicity aces at 20th Century-Fox (they built Shirley Temple, Tyrone Power, Betty Grable, Marilyn Monroe, many others into screen celebrities), insists the moviegoing public is "too fair-minded to hold against any actress her parents' wealth."

"If Dina Merrill's got what it takes," press director Nat Dyches maintains, "she'll make it. If she doesn't, she won't. Her money's got nothing to do with it. Look at Grace Kelly. Look at Nelson Rockefeller. Look at Averell Harriman. Nowadays, it's no sin to have a few bucks."

How does Dina herself feel about it? She is following a line of advice handed down to her many years ago by a wise and erudite father: "Smile—and proceed as the road opens."
